Date changed to June 20 for special town meeting

by Arlene Surprenant

A special town meeting called to vote on a 150 unit duplex project near the Woburn line was moved Tuesday night from May 23 to June 20. This change, said Wilmington selectmen, would allow them time to obtain answers to questions they had on the affordable housing project being proposed by the Dellaciprete brothers and the Wilmington Housing Authority.

WHA member Dan Gillis is a firm advocate of the project. Though he claimed proponents "want to get going as soon as possible," it was obvious from selectmen's questions on the length of the bidding process, the sewer extension, and time needed to gain all approvals that they felt this would be a lengthy process.

In referring to what could be the town's first sponsored project of this size, Chairman Robert Cain told Gillis, "the first one that goes has to be the best proposal. People won't accept it if it starts and goes bad." For this reason, selectmen said they need the extra time to check several legal aspects of the three articles with Town Counsel as well as look into such things as the developers' experience and finances.

Gillis agreed to the extension of time, saying that the housing authority would only do things in a legal and above board manner. He also agreed to a suggestion by Cain to have both boards meet beforehand "so we can work together on the project."

Stewart said one of his board's roles should be to ask the proper questions just as members would of a private developer. He added he was against bringing "personalities" into the discussion and making this a bigger issue than it already is. "If we can work this out, this will be the first in the state," said Gillis.

The warrant for the special town meeting in June will remain open until 4 p.m. Friday, April 29.

School committee opts for one-year bus contract

The Wilmington School Committee voted unanimously last Wednesday to approve a one year bus contract with the Trombley Motor Coach Company for the next school year.

Trombley had the lowest bid for a one year contract, edging out the Wellesley Company. There were a total of five companies bidding for either a one, three, or five year contract.

Committeemen praised the company, which has served Wilmington in the past, saying the buses are "absolutely immaculate" and Mr. Trombley has been "more than understanding" in addressing Wilmington's needs.

Robert Woods, a prospective bidder who said he had worked for Trombley, questioned why the committee would opt for a one year contract when it takes three years to really get established.

"No one bids a one year school contract," Woods said.

Committeeman Shirley Callan said her only concern was that the buses are up to nine years old.

Trio arrested on stakeout

by Arlene Surprenant

As a result of a stakeout by Wilmington police, three Lynn residents were arrested Monday night on charges ranging from receipt of stolen property to possession of cocaine.

According to Deputy Police Chief Bernard Nally, Mary Drapaniotis, 23, George Doucette, 27, and Nicholas Romano, 35, were each held overnight and released on bail after appearing in Woburn Court.

A call from Stelios Restaurant Sunday night alerted police to the suspicious behavior of several people outside the Lowell Street restaurant. Police later found a cache outside the restaurant of 700 valium pills, an approximate quarter ounce of cocaine, $7,000 in cash, and a stolen pistol traced to a break-in in Maine.

Police took all but a bagful of pills and staked out the scene Monday until the three suspects returned for their property. One of the suspects had an additional $3,800 on him and one was reportedly discovered to be out on parole for murder.

returned to office were A. Daniel Gillis of the Wilmington Housing Authority, who topped the ballot with 1,364 votes; Selectman Robert Cain (1,275); Moderator Michael Caira (1,349); Kevin Sowyrda of the Tech School Committee (1,285); and Sidney Kaizer of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (1,204).

Winners

Shirley Callan and Bob Surran were all smiles on Saturday night after winning the town election. They captured the only contested offices on the ballot, three-year terms on the Wilmington School Committee.

Killer of two gets two life terms

A Lawrence man has been sentenced to two life terms after being convicted of the 1986 slaying of two women, both former residents of Wilmington.

Robert Batchelder, 35, was found guilty of two counts of second degree murder in the stabbing deaths of Linda McVicker and Mary Ann Neher.

Batchelder, who lived in the same apartment building as the women, was found guilty by a 12-person jury at Newburyport Superior Court, according to a story in the Lawrence Eagle-Tribune. He was then sentenced to two consecutive life terms at Walpole Prison. He will be eligible for parole in 30 years.

Batchelder's lawyer, Dennis Jackson, admitted that Batchelder committed slayings, but claimed his client was innocent because of insanity.

Batchelder, a native of Reading, was said to have committed the slayings believing the women conspired with women he worked with to destroy his sex life, his career, and his car, allegations which were proven untrue in court.

Linda McVicker was a native of Wilmington, the daughter of Joan and Robert McVicker. She had worked in the Wilmington Recreation Dept. playground programs.

Mary Ann Neher was a co-worker of McVicker's at Analog Devices in Wilmington. She had formerly lived in an apartment above the Silver Lake Pharmacy. Together they coached a softball team.

The two women were found slain in their Lawrence apartment on July 2, 1986. Both had been stabbed repeatedly.

Early dismissal

There will be an early dismissal day for all Wilmington public school elementary students Wednesday, April 27, 1988. Dismissal time for all elementary students (K through five) will be 12 o'clock noon.

There will be no afternoon kindergarten sessions. Morning kindergarten students will remain in school until noon on the 27th.

Lunches will be served to all students grades one through five.

McCain collages on exhibit at Arlington Trust

Collages by Wilmington artist Charlotte McCain are presently on exhibit at the Arlington Trust office at Wilmington Plaza.

Charlotte is a self-taught artist in collage. She uses tissue paper, cloth and other types of paper to create a painting. Her pictures are bright, happy and very alive. Her subjects run from scenery to still lifes.

Charlotte first became interested in art when she attended a one-year program at Northeastern University majoring in art. She has taken several painting and drawing lessons throughout the suburban Boston area.

She has exhibited at the Harnden Tavern in Wilmington and in local art shows in Wilmington, Reading and Billerica. Several of her collages and portrait studies in pencil have won ribbons.

Charlotte is an active member of the Wilmington Arts Council. She is presently employed at Bridge Printing in Woburn.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois Certified Public Accountant NEW RULES ON MORTGAGE INTEREST

Tax deductions for home mortgages have been clarified, modified -- and maybe simplified -- in the 1987 tax law.

Most basic change: interest on mortgage loans up to $1 million to acquire, construct or substantially improve a home is fully deductible; over $1 million, you're paying "personal" interest, only 40 percent deductible this year, less next year.

On home-equity loans, the cap is $100,000 for the interest to be fully deductible. The loan can now be for more than the purchase price of the house (though not more than its market value), and there are no longer any requirements about using the funds for medical or educational purposes. If you use a home-equity loan to make substantial improvements in your home, it is not subject to the $100,000 limit.

These regulations refer to loans made after October 13, 1987. There are still sticky questions, not yet resolved, about bridge loans and mortgaging houses bought for all-cash.

Task force looks at affordability of Shawsheen River Estates

by Arlene Surprenant

Though no decision has been reached on the fate of a comprehensive permit for Shawsheen River Estates, members of Wilmington's Affordable Housing Task Force are already reviewing the project's economics, affordability, and possible tradeoffs in amenities.

As the town's housing partner with the state, task force members are required to either endorse or disapprove the project once they complete their review.

At Thursday's meeting, representatives from Shawsheen River Associates answered questions on finances. They said the average selling price of the 66 units under the Homeownership Opportunity Program (HOP) would be $75,000. Buyers who qualify for these units would have to have income levels ranging from $19,000 to $29,560, proponents said. The interest rate is said to be 5.5 percent for the first six years and 8 percent after the tenth year. Under the new HOP guidelines, only 60 percent of the affordable units would be set aside for Wilmington residents.

It was also pointed out that the remainder of single and multi units would sell at market values ranging from $125,000 to $140,000 and these units, according to consultant Mary Trudeau, would be "as exclusive as we can make them."

During the discussion, members asked that amenities such as an extra half bath and fireplaces be deleted from the units. By only having one bathroom, for instance, the developer would save the $1,000 estimated cost of each half bath. Some members referred to the danger posed by fireplaces and asked if such amenities weren't "frivolous."

Members suggested tradeoffs for such things as sidewalks which "make more sense" for the elderly and handicapped. They also suggested some of the single family homes be ranch style and be set aside for the handicapped.

When Conrad Gerhartz asked if an analysis had been done on density to see if the project is more dense in one area as opposed to another, proponents said there was no fixed blueprint.

"We want to work with the town," developer Jay Tighe said, adding at various times proponents were flexible and willing to make concessions and adjustments to meet the town's needs.

Tighe did add, however, that sidewalks at an estimated $400,000 cost were "completely out of the question." Others persisted that sidewalks would be a good tradeoff were proponents to get $500,000 in CDAG funds.

Building Inspector James Russo, who is also a task force member, explained at one point that even if the permit is denied, proponents still have to follow the state building code "all the way." He told Tighe he had yet to see specifics on services and other aspects on the project. All he has seen, Russo said, is an architect's rendering.

"I like to see things up front. I'd like to know what we're getting," he added.

The 220 unit proposal is currently under review by the town's housing consultants, the Community Opportunities Group. Consultant Lynn Leab explained COG's traffic experts would look at traffic impacts and roadway design and she was attending various meetings and taking note of neighbors' and town concerns.

Though Tighe said he was unsure when construction could begin if he receives funding approval by the state in May, under HOP guidelines projects have to be ready for construction within 60 to 90 days of that approval.

Town manager to speak on sludge plant proposal

The proposal for a sludge processing facility in North Wilmington will be the topic when Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski addresses the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce next Tuesday at the Ballardvale Street plant of Compugraphic Corporation. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m.

Wilmington is one of twelve communities under consideration by the Mass. Water Resources Authority for a "residuals treatment facility," otherwise known as a sludge plant. The Wilmington site is off Andover Street.

The program is being sponsored by Compugraphic. All members, as well as industries in the Ballardvale Street - Andover Street area are invited to attend.

Reservations are required, and may be made by calling the Chamber office at 657-7211 by noon on Monday, April 25.

Tewksbury set for two town meetings in May

Tewksbury's Annual Town Meeting is scheduled to begin Monday, May 2, 1988, at 8 p.m. in the high school gymnasium off Pleasant Street. A Special Town Meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, May 4, to begin at 7 p.m.

First order of business at this year's Annual will be the selection by voters of a new town moderator. Moderator Bill Hurton was elected to the board of selectmen recently, and town by-law forbids anyone from holding two elected offices at the same time.

Once the moderator is elected, a warrant containing 47 articles will await voter action.

The Special Town Meeting, set to run concurrently with the Annual, has 11 articles on the warrant.

63 teachers terminated

Approximately 63 non-tenure teachers in the Wilmington School System will be dropped at the end of the school year largely because of the decline in school enrollment. Of those, all but 15 or 16 are expected to be hired back.

School Supt. Robert Horan told the school committee last week the number of teachers hired back will depend on how many students sign up for various subjects.

The action, which is taken every year, is reportedly necessitated by budgetary considerations. Shirley Callan told fellow members that even though they are forced to cut staff, it still seems like a "severe" reduction in personnel.

The cuts were made at this time because, by law, the school department must give notice by April 15 to any teacher who might not be hired back for the following school year. The notices are usually given to all personnel who might be cut, even though they might be later rehired.

Post chaplain

James "Bill" Scott (center) has served as chaplain of three Wilmington veterans' organizations. In recognition of his many years of service, the Veterans of Foreign Wars presented him with a plaque last Thursday evening. The award was presented by Elmer Parker and Ed Tonto.

Neighbors oppose rezoning article

by Arlene Surprenant

A rezoning article on one of the special town meetings scheduled for this Saturday met with some opposition from two neighbors of petitioner Lorraine Stickney.

Stickney, a single parent of two who rented space from the Neilson family in the old North Wilmington depot, lost her beauty shop and all her equipment when a fire destroyed much of that building recently. In a warrant article, she is asking voters to allow her to rezone a parcel on Parker Street from R10 to Neighborhood Business so she can relocate her business by her home.

At a planning board hearing Tuesday night, Stickney said she would like to build a "garage sized building" either attached or detached from her home to house her business. She was unsure if this would require enlarging her septic system, she added.

"This is all new to me so I don't know the steps and the procedures," she said. Though Stickney said she had been told she may fall under the Home Occupancy Law, Chairman Carole Hamilton said a personal service type of operation is not allowed under that law.

"I just want to operate. I don't want to shut down," said Stickney.

Planning board members had some reservations about the article, claiming this might be a case of spot zoning. Hamilton asked why the petitioner didn't elect to amend the zoning bylaw instead. Stickney said she was open to all suggestions.

Neighbors Chris Brown and Ida Bartnick came prepared with questions and comments.

"I have my rights and I'm a taxpayer. I'm not going to jeopardize my house. It's right in my backyard, you might as well say, (and) I don't think that's fair," argued Bartnick.

Brown raised many issues including how the rezoning would lower her property values and increase traffic in the neighborhood.

Hamilton said in the end "it's the people of the town who will decide the issue."

Violations review

Violations and how to enforce them with an increasing workload on the building inspector's shoulders was one of the topics under discussion by the Wilmington Planning Board Tuesday night.

Planners informally reviewed a growing list of possible violations in various parts of town. They mentioned trucks parked for long periods in parking lots and in back of stores. They pointed out illegal signs and noted that certain store-owners need to clean up their property.

Though enforcement falls to Building Inspector James Russo, members realized that such a backlog of alleged violations may require the hiring of additional help.

Health board signs food license

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington Board of Health signed a retail food license for Onstage Video Tuesday night with the proviso that owner Sharon Breault agree not to sell slush to customers.

Health Director Greg Erickson told board members he was concerned with the easy transfer of a disease like hepatitis if food handlers forget to wash their hands between touching the videos and the food. He suggested instead any food sold in the establishment be wrapped to eliminate the possibility of health problems.

Breault explained that she would have two employees during the busiest hours, one to sell food and one to wait on video customers. She added she had put in an extra sink accessible to all so employees could readily wash their hands. Members were concerned about the one or two times employees would forget to do that.

When Breault argued that other store owners currently sell slush because it's so profitable and all children seem to like it, members said that was illegal and they would look into this further. They said they didn't intend to set a precedent with the new video store.

In the end, Breault agreed the best solution would be to stick to wrapped candy, popcorn, and ice cream like Hoods sandwiches, which are individually wrapped.

In other business, the board granted a variance to Ben Waruszyla of Lawrence Court allowing him to retain a 1,000 gallon septic tank and a 720 square foot leech field.

According to town regulations, Waruszyla would need to install a 1500 gallon tank and provide 800 square feet of leech field for an addition he's proposing for his special needs son. Waruszyla argued it would be a "tremendous expense" just to add another 80 feet to his field. He added to date he had had no problems with his system.

Erickson favored the request since, even with the addition, the amount of water wouldn't change and the present field is almost twice the size required by state regulations. Members voted unanimously for the variance, at the same time warning Waruszyla that should his system fail he would have to go through the expense of installing a new system.

A fluoride hearing scheduled for 7 p.m. turned into a no-show when residents failed to appear to voice their concerns. Also absent was the chairman of the board.

Last chance to nominate "Good Guy"

This is your last chance to submit your nomination for this year's Good Guy Award to a Wilmington person. All entries, to be eligible, must be postmarked no later than Friday, April 22.

Nominations should be sent to the Good Guy Committee, P.O. Box 387, Wilmington and should include your reasons why your Good Guy/Gal should be selected.

The Good Guy Award is annually given to an outstanding citizen in our community (non-political) - male or female, who gives of themselves to make our community a better place to live in. The award will be presented at the 19th annual Good Guy banquet, Saturday, May 14 at the Sons of Italy Hall, Wilmington.

This will be your final opportunity to take a few minutes and let the committee know who you feel is most deserving of the Good Guy award.

WHS graduation June 12

June 12 is officially the date for the 1988 graduation ceremony in Wilmington. At their meeting last Wednesday, the Wilmington School Committee reluctantly voted to go with that date. The decision was prompted by a new law requiring seniors to attend school 168 days of the year.

Prior to the change, seniors were under the impression they would graduate the first weekend in June, a practice which has been adhered to in the past. A June 5 date had inadvertently been published in the WHS student handbook.

Bridget Zukas summed up the situation for the seniors present and her board.

"We are bound by law. As one member of the school committee, we have failed you. I am ashamed. I

Members of the Wilmington Company of Minutemen generally do a lot of marching. Minutemen companies are popular in parades, and the Wilmington group takes part in several parades each year. But probably their toughest march each year is the annual Patriots' Day march to Concord, a 17-mile trek. And marching to Concord is really the essence of being a Minuteman.

The Minutemen set off on the annual march at 2 a.m. on April 18. Most of the residents of Church Street are now used to, if not overly fond of, the sound of musket fire as the militia marches up Church Street to the center. Once they reach Sweetheart Plastics, they regroup. Many of them then go home to bed, but about a dozen continue on for the full 17-mile march. Others accompany the marchers in vehicles, to pick up anyone who might not be able to complete the march.

The marcher of the longest standing is Jeff Coville of Powderhouse Circle. Next year will be his 20th march to Concord.

Where do the Minutemen get the stamina for such a long march?

Well, you could say they are full of beans. Yes, baked beans.

Each year, before they set off, the Minutemen have a breakfast, with

Have beans, will travel

baked beans, cornbread, scrambled eggs, sausages and grog. While some will say that the grog is the heart of the breakfast, it is really the beans that are the centerpiece. Some of the women associated with the company really go all out in baking up a pot of beans.

This year, someone decided that they should have a bean contest. The beans are always that good, that someone should judge which ones are the best.

The contest didn't turn out as expected. While there were some of the excellent pots of baked beans, there were also a couple of jokers. Frank Curley of Hanover Street, who is now the general of the Massachusetts Council of Minutemen and Militia, brought his very own recipe, all neatly done up in a can. He won second prize.

First prize went to Dan Lyon, who brought a bag of beans that could have come straight from the White House. Yes, Dan's prize-winning entry was a bag of gourmet jelly beans.

Canned entry

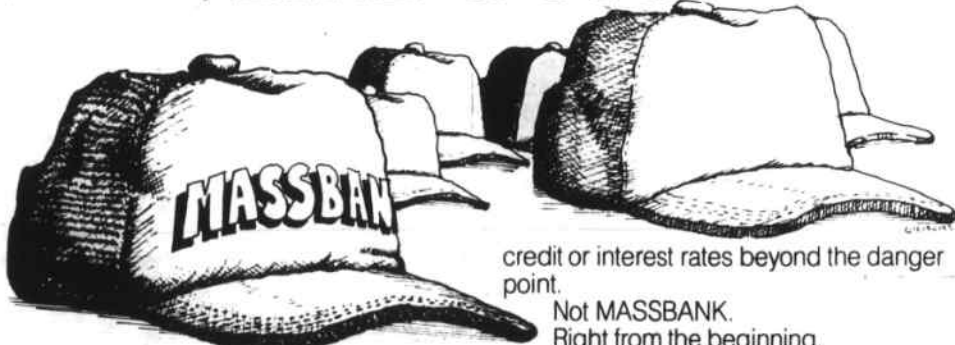

General Frank Curley came to the Minuteman Patriots' Day breakfast with a smile, and a can of beans. His entry won second prize in the bean contest.

April march

The Wilmington Minutemen march through Wilmington Square on Patriots Day weekend. In spite of rain, several of the marchers went the entire distance to Concord.

NOW THAT IT'S LAW, BANKS EVERYWHERE ARE MAKING
PROGRAMS LOOK LIKE OURS.

It took awhile for people to realize it, but under certain circumstances, home equity credit accounts could be dangerous.

In fact, without certain safeguards, most home equity programs had made it possible for people to borrow themselves right out of a home.

The danger lay in fluctuating interest rates. A person may find him or herself able to repay an equity loan at the rate it was taken out, but unable to pay when rates rise above a certain point.

A lot of people were putting their homes at risk without realizing it. And many banks were doing nothing to limit credit or interest rates beyond the danger point.

Not MASSBANK. Right from the beginning, MASSBANK set common sense limits on Home Equity lending.

How? By putting a cap of 14 percent on the interest rate.

And by approving credit lines based on people's ability to repay, not just on the equity in their homes.

What happened? The government stepped in and made capping interest on home equity credit accounts the law.

And now the home equity programs at banks everywhere are beginning to look like ours has right from the beginning. To them it's a matter of compliance.

At MASSBANK, it's always been a matter of principle.

Preview of Wilmington warrant

The Annual Town Meeting of Wilmington is scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the gymnasium of Wilmington High School. Many enjoy taking part. Others go to watch and listen. With a lot of work and a little luck the meeting may be completed in one day. If not, the rule of the town meeting voters has been to adjourn until the next Saturday.

There is a prepared warrant in which the various items of town business are listed, by article numbers. The moderator draws numbers out of a hat, in a lottery system, to call up the articles. It is a good system, fair to all, except that Tewksbury does it a little better. In Wilmington the town's financial articles take precedence. Someone seems to feel that the voters might walk out, or something.

Any town meeting always has the possibility of a "mouse trap." The town votes for something which turns out to be the wrong thing. The town might regret that vote for years. One such event was about a quarter of a century ago, when an urban renewal article was defeated. The town is still trying to solve the problem of what to do about Wilmington Square.

The first discussion, in the town's finances, will open on "selectmen's salaries." The selectmen of Wilmington do not receive salaries. The salary item refers only to selectmen's employees. It is the same in the case of school committee employees. No member of the school committee has been paid since 1923.

The town manager, town clerk, town accountant, etc., are paid employees, and appointed, not elected. In Wilmington the town manager is the major appointing official. In the warrant, the finance committee (fincom) tries to make the recommendation clear, by showing how many persons are involved.

Not until the town meeting gets to Article 10 does the moderator start drawing the article numbers from a hat, i.e. the lottery system.

Article 10, which may possibly not be drawn until late in the evening, is about the Reading Electric Light (RMLD). The town and the Chamber of Commerce have been having quite a battle over the past few years with RMLD and the rates being paid.

This article wants more money, to continue the fight to a finish. It is fitting and proper that the town does this. Some persons may feel dubious, but the town's position should be supported until an agreement has been signed, sealed and delivered. This paper agrees with the fincom.

Article 11: Asks for $5,000 for the Wilmington Council of Arts. This is a new item. The fincom thinks that $2,000 is sufficient, enough to be certain the old town hall doors are well locked. What the Arts Council seeks is a security system to protect any art work which may be in the building. Without the system, artists will be hesitant to leave their work. The extra $3000 should greatly reduce that liability.

Article 12: The moratorium on sale of town owned land is to continue for another year. Except -- there will always be articles to sell town owned land. Just look at this year's warrant. Maybe by the year 1999 the town will finally accomplish what it has been saying it wants to do -- have an inventory of town owned land.

Article 13: Asks for punishments for violators of the town's bylaws and regulations, by the appropriate enforcing officer. Curiously, the article comes from the Wilmington Board of Health. It is quite possible some definite cases of bylaw violations are in mind.

Article 14: Asks for amendments in the town's earth removal bylaws. The fincom approves. So, probably, will most of the voters.

Article 15: Asks for the adoption of a section of Massachusetts laws, with respect to the issuance of a lein (sic) certificate. Obviously lein is meant. There is only one place in the English language where the syllable lein is proper, and that is in Leinster, Ireland.

Article 16: Asks for the construction of a water standpipe in the Town Forest in North Wilmington. The purpose of this standpipe would be to increase the capacity and pressure of the water system in North Wilmington.

Article 17: Proposes a sewer on the east side of Route 93, to North Wilmington. It is a part of a long range water and sewer program prepared by the water and sewer commissioners. Fincom approves, and so will many others.

Article 18: To release restrictions on what is said to be town owned land which has been sold. The fincom approves.

Article 19: Proposes to "unzone" land owned by John Forrest on Lowell Street. He owns the filling station on Lowell Street at the corner of West Street. The Massachusetts DPW has plans to add new ramps to the intersection of Routes 129 and 93. This project will block off the front of the gas station, and put Forrest out of business. He has purchased other land on Lowell Street and had it rezoned in last year's town meeting. The article seeks to "unzone" that land.

It seems vengeful, in purpose. This paper is baffled. If nothing else, the discussion will be the best entertainment of the day.

Article 20: Seeks to take a small parcel of land on Main Street for a traffic signal. For people in a town meeting the description is inadequate.

Article 21: Seeks to take a strip of land on Burlington Avenue, obviously for safety purposes. Everyone will agree that a safety measure is a good thing.

Article 22: Asks for the right to sell town owned land to "non profit corporations" etc., if they are established for educational purposes. Sounds good, but are Wilmington residents who seek to purchase land for their children to be defined as "non profit?"

Article 23: Seeks to sell town owned land to the May Institute of Chatham. Fincom approves. The institute would build a group home for autistic children, so that children who have progressed in their treatment may live closer to their families. This would serve as a transition home, allowing them to live in a home environment before returning to their own homes.

Articles 24, 25, and 26: To accept certain streets, as town ways. Wilmington always does this job in the right way.

Article 27: To raise some money for engineering purposes for Ainsworth Road in North Wilmington. The road has a sad history, being the former Salem & Lowell Railroad (1851). In places it is too narrow for an accepted street. The fincom says "no action." It is quite possible some voters will take some.

Article 28: Seeks to have parking meters in the North Wilmington parking lot. This might have been a good idea some years ago. It has no relationship which this paper can see to today's problems, some of which are related to beer.

Article 29: Support for the three veterans club houses. The fincom and this paper see eye-to-eye.

Article 30: $5,000 for observance of Memorial and Veterans' days.

Article 31: The town, it seems has overcharged Margaret Calnan on sewer betterments. Obviously she should be treated properly.

Article 32: To rezone land on Main Street, "Elmer's Place," at the corner of Clark Street. The heirs seek to rezone to Neighborhood Business, and then sell the land.

Article 33: To rezone land in North Wilmington, westerly of Andover Street, in a site where sludge operations have been proposed, as has been reported in this paper. The fincom says no to rezoning, and so does the Planning Board. Is it possible to get the people on these boards to talk about the non-benefits of state imposed sludge operations in Wilmington with the assistant town manager?

Perhaps that gentleman might draw their attention to the story on page 7 of this paper on April 13, and then report their reaction to the town. The proposed sludge operations are a big subject in Wilmington today.

Article 34: Proposes a swap of parking easements in North

Wilmington, near the North Wilmington station. There is much more to this than meets the eye. An unfavorable vote has the possibility of becoming a "mouse trap" for the town.

In 1958 the town took a "parking lot" by eminent domain, in order to provide parking for railroad patrons. The B&M then stopped passenger service and since then there have been various activities. In 1980, the MBTA resumed passenger service on the Haverhill line.

It seems the operation is going to increase in scope. Reading plans to restrict parking in that town, and the construction of the Central Artery in Boston will cause even greater traffic problems than now exist. Therefore, the MBTA plans to increase both the train service and the parking. A story, too, is that there is to be another railroad stop, where the railroad passes under 129 (at the Reading line). There is still another story of a prospective stop, somewhere near the Wilmington/Andover town lines.

But in North Wilmington the plans can be described as "uncertain." Except for a few years, trains have been running through North Wilmington since 1845. In the first 75 or 80 years there were no problems. Then everyone started buying automobiles.

Since 1930 the number of autos on Middlesex Avenue being stopped because the railroad gates were down has been increasing steadily. One very bad problem is that when the trains stop for passengers, they block the road.

Today when the gates are down autos line up, on each side, for about half a mile. They are beyond High Street on one side and nearly to Federal Street on the other. Frequently fire engines and ambulances are to be included in the list of cars being held up by the trains.

The problem, basically, is to stop the trains where they do not block traffic, either northerly or southerly of Middlesex Avenue. A new platform will be built, but nobody seems to know where it will be.

There are several items about the parking lot that are worthy of discussion. It was taken by a town meeting vote of eminent domain from the previous owner. The town counsel adopted the same procedure which was used for property taken by eminent domain for highways. The town merely took an easement.

When a street is accepted no one ever uses the ground beneath it, except for those who construct sewer mains or telephone lines. No one ever claims ownership, even if, as is frequently the case, there is private ownership on both sides.

In this instance the subsurface was left in the ownership of the previous owner. That now has raised questions, many years later.

Meanwhile there were no trains, and Larz Neilson, who owned the old railroad station, bought some land that was not being used, as a site for a future office. He bought from the town, about 20 years ago, the unpaved portion of the property.

Later the planning board was increasing the size of business lots. One hundred feet of frontage was required, on a street. So Larz bought more land from the town, this time land to set aside for parking.

The town, however, did not own the land that it sold. Attorney Joe Courtney, during the Fincom hearing compared the town's actions in this instance to the equivalent of selling the Brooklyn Bridge to a tourist.

Last year Steve Lawrenson of Wilmington bought the "back land," land that is northwesterly of the town parking lot. He has erected an attractive office building, fairly large, which is now being used. He has as yet to install curbs along Jefferson Road, as called for in the planning board regulations, but he has every intention of doing so.

Mr. Lawrenson suddenly had a problem, when he was putting in utility poles. One more light pole was needed, and Lawrenson asked the owner of adjacent property for an easement to give him the right to put in a pole. It was refused.

Lawrenson asked his attorney to check into the situation. He was told by his attorney that he, Lawrenson, owned the land under the parking lot. The town, in its eminent domain proceedings took only the surface. Not only does Lawrenson own the land under the parking lot owned by the town, but he also owns the land under that which Larz bought from the town. So says his attorney.

That raises a number of questions. None can be answered easily.

When Lawrenson finishes Jefferson Road, which connects the building lot with Middlesex Avenue, the planning board says he will have to erect curbs, against adjacent land. He has no choice but to comply.

It sounds like a can of worms, first-class worms too. The town parking lot can accommodate about 40 cars, or maybe less, if there is free access. But if Lawrenson has to put up barriers, what happens to the access?

A pretty kettle of worms, isn't it? Lawrenson has proposed, in Article 34, that the town and he can swap parking lots.

He owns a large parking lot, all paved, in back of his building. There is plenty of space for a railroad platform, indeed, a railroad station if anyone feels such is necessary. Lawrenson had to pave that land, under planning board regulations. Because of the wetlands law, however, there is a large ditch between it and the building it is supposed to serve.

Put in some street lights, and a platform for handicapped persons, and the lot could link directly to the tracks. There would be no stopping of trains on Middlesex Avenue, which would mean no stopping of fire engines or ambulances, as well as ordinary citizens. It all seems to make sense.

The MBTA, of course, is not being heard from. It does have power of eminent domain and can "seize" any property it chooses, if needed.

There has been a story that the MBTA will seize the building adjacent to the Shell station in North Wilmington, and have a platform on the south side of the tracks.

Maybe it could be a good idea - that is, if the last car doesn't project out over Middlesex Avenue, and stop autos, fire engines and ambulances. That could happen.

Wilmington, thanks to the legislature now has (or soon will have) three representatives. Will that number do any good, or is going to be a repeat of the case of Wilmington Square, where nothing was solved?

Mr. Lawrenson, it seems, is making a proposal in the belief it will be the best thing for the people of Wilmington.

Don't put your hat on folks, and leave the town meeting early. With three claimants to the town parking lot almost anything can happen. Stick around and see the show.

Article 35: Seeks to rezone land on Main Street, opposite the Town Park. The zoning change would be to High Density Business (HDB). This is a requirement in Wilmington for such things as automobile agencies. The fincom disapproves.

The matter is moot. This paper has been told the agency which sought to move into Wilmington has changed its mind.

Article 36: To accept Research Drive, a new street, off Ballardvale Street, as a public way. The fincom voted "No Action".

On the back of the inside cover of the Finance Committee recommendations is a map, showing Research Drive. It runs easterly from Ballardvale Street, and the article says it runs westerly.

The street was developed and constructed by Tambone Corporation, the firm which is constructing industrial buildings in the area. There will be no cost to the town. It seems right to accept the street unless the town engineer has an objection. None has been offered, to date.

As this paper understands the situation, the construction also involved the laying of the water main which is to go to the new water tank, in the Town Forest. That water main will be for the exclusive use of the town. The water tank will be discussed in Article 16.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

If you plan on fishing this Saturday, why not stop in at the Wilmington Annual Town Meeting instead. There are a few cans of worms to open up there, and the meeting ought to be a lot more interesting than Silver Lake or Horn Pond. Among them are Articles 28 and 34.

Article 28 would add a new fixture to the landscape in Wilmington, namely, parking meters. If passed by voters, the article submitted by the Manager would authorize the town to raise the necessary funds to install and operate parking meters at the North Wilmington parking lot, where the town has had a parking easement since 1958. The land is actually owned by developer Steve Lawrenson.

Oddly enough, this article is completely dependent on the fate of another. Article 34, as submitted by Steve Lawrenson, would transfer that very parking easement on his property, to the rear of Station Square, which is Lawrenson's newest business development in Wilmington. Station Square is located behind the North Wilmington parking lot, and has its access road running through the parking lot.

Article 28 would provide paid parking for commuters and others. It would be the first time the town has taken advantage of the parking easement that it has had on the property since the 1958 town meeting vote. It probably doesn't mean meter maids in Wilmington (Thank Goodness!), but could perhaps be enforced by the proposed traffic division of the police department.

Along with the expense of maintenance, the initial investment will be a significant one. One parking meter costs about $175, and that's for just the mechanism itself. And then there is the cost of the housing, the post, and installation.

But for some reason it's hard to picture parking meters in Wilmington. Along with all the aggravation common to this traffic-ridden town, compounding that with meters where we park to shop, eat, or take a train ride, isn't too attractive a prospect. It's one more obstacle in the daily routine.

Then there's the enforcement issue. Will the town really issue parking tickets if you don't plug a quarter into a meter before you get your steak-bomb at Stop and Go? Will there be a Wilmington Boot for repeat violators who take their coffee and cruller at Winston's?

And how long will these brand new meters last, before vandalism takes its toll in a parking lot well known as the favorite "hang-out" during summer months?

Article 28 is well intentioned. But when examined closely, it could create more problems than it solves.

Article 34 is in direct conflict with Article 28. It would transfer the town's parking rights from where the Manager has proposed a parking meter system, to the rear of Station Square.

The petitioner, Steve Lawrenson, is one of a number of people who are affected by some real estate revelations [these are best described as revelations] with the property in this area. Only recently did he find that he has title to land previously thought owned by Larz Neilson, bordering the parking lot. Larz does own the depot, but not the surrounding land he had purchased over the years from the town, since apparently the town never owned it.

Lawrenson's article is the most justified, and will still leave the town with a parking easement in North Wilmington, but in a different parking lot.

The land in question has been owned by Lawrenson for some three years now, since he acquired it from Jack Comeau and Robert Pondelli. Prior to Comeau and Pondelli, the lot was held by Sadie Weinstein, who was the owner when the parking easement was voted in 1958. Many have presumed that the town owns the land, but in fact it never has.

Interestingly enough, Weinstein was not compensated in 1958 for the town meeting vote, and subsequently won a court judgement against the town for $12,000.

The REAL Decisions of a Town Meeting Voter

Not enough time

by Arlene Surprenant

There isn't enough time. There never is. There are so many demands on our time, it seems, especially on weekends in spring.

There's the lawn to be raked. The car to be washed. Screens to be put up. Winter clothes to be put away. Gardens to plant. Spring cleaning. Shopping. Bike riding. Little League. And more.

With all the competition for one's time, it's fairly easy to see why only 19 percent of Wilmington voters cared enough to go to the polls last Saturday, even though the successful candidates will have a large say in how the town is run in the years ahead. And one can safely predict that many citizens will be too busy to spend even part of the day at town meeting this Saturday.

They will be too busy to make important budget decisions for the year ahead or to vote on such vital issues as the extension of the land moratorium and continuing the break with Reading Light. They will be too busy to listen to neighbors voice concerns or support for various articles. They will be too busy to participate in democracy in action.

What's to be done? We will rely on the few, as usual. And we'll let the others complain, as usual, about town government, overspending, and the fact that nobody listens to them.

A second look at reapportionment

Re-apportionment of the state's legislative districts has died down in the State House and the Boston press, but not in the minds of the Wilmington selectmen. Although the legislative map appears to have the approval of the Boston polls and the federal judge on the case, the locals are quite upset that Wilmington will be split among three legislative districts.

So when Wilmington voters go to town meeting on Saturday, a warrant article will ask their opinion of the new legislative districts.

Rep. Jim Miceli has become a popular target of criticism on this matter, since he sat on the redistricting committee, and since the new districting makes it almost impossible for anyone to beat him in his own district.

Before you kick anyone in the shins, however, it might be worth it to understand why Wilmington was split up and not Tewksbury.

One of the desired goals of the legislative redistricting was to size each district within five percent either way of an average population of 35,915. If you combine the populations of Wilmington and Tewksbury, the total is over 41,000. There would have to be some kind of a split, somewhere.

The first redistricting plan presented by the committee preserved the previous district, with five of Wilmington's six precincts. It would have been one of the largest districts in the state, a full ten percent over the desired population. The district had to be split.

If you are going to split off a precinct and add it to a different legislative district, you must add it to a district that is below population, or else you will then have to split off another precinct and attach it to yet another legislative district. Dominoes.

Post-election comments

Nineteen out of every 100 voters in Wilmington decided the fate of the one electoral contest on April 16, the school committee race. Be that as it may, Robert Surran's strong showing was probably to be expected, considering his active campaign and high visibility. Shirley Callan held on to her committee seat, and was noted by many at the polling places for "getting her vote out", which is the key to victory for anyone, especially in dismal voter turnouts. The surprise of the night was certainly the third place showing of Gerry O'Reilly over former appointed board member Suzi Cushing. Cushing carried some impressive endorsements, and had served previously on the school committee upon the death of her father Mitchell Spirits.

The top vote getter of the day was Housing Authority Member Dan Gillis. This was an impressive showing, and could be interpreted as a favorable nod from the town for Gillis' support of an affordable housing development at the Wilmington-Woburn line.

Some might have called Saturday a boring election day, and not exactly the political extravaganza of the previous Saturday's election in Tewksbury. Perhaps that proves that politically speaking, an active selectmen's race, whether we like it or not, is why most voters leave the house to vote on a Saturday in spring time. Wilmington voters weren't too stimulated this year; and the rain, sleet, and snow of the early voting hours possible soured the turnout even more.

But the day did have one noted controversy. It is worth mentioning as much as it is worth condemning. An incident at the Wildwood School between a veteran school committee member and a candidate for election was very sad, and should be brought to the attention of the voters.

Suzi Cushing was greeting locals at the Wildwood School. At the same time, school committee member Bridget Zukas drove by, wishing "Good luck" to others who were also anxiously seeking the few votes to be had in the Saturday drizzle. The confrontation might have been inevitable. Zukas has been a vocal critic of both Cushing, and her late father.

When she came to Cushing, after greeting all the campaign workers with the words "Good luck", Zukas broke the number one rule of American politics -- she was clearly overheard by many to bellow to Cushing, "Not you!"

Now let's take this incident in context. Zukas has the right to endorse and not endorse whomever she pleases. She was publicly with another candidate, and that is her constitutional right. But if she thought she would escape scrutiny while publicly shouting a disparaging comment at the opposition, on the one day of the year that all camps should be quick to come to peace, she is hereby proven mistaken.

U.S. Court orders Town to meet with plaintiff regarding Corey land

An Open Letter to the Residents of Wilmington:

We are the owners of 50 acres of industrial land in North Wilmington, fronting on Route 125 and Route 93. We have been trying to develop this land for over 25 years, and have been stymied in our efforts through actions by the Town of Wilmington.

The Town has been talking about taking the land for water department protection of the aquifer. Although the voters voted in town meeting to take a portion of the land by eminent domain, the town has never come forth and made the purchase. Town officials have chosen, instead, to play games and try to prevent the development of the land without paying for it. This would amount to a taking of land without compensation, a violation of our rights under the Fifth Amendment.

As a result of these actions, we have filed a lawsuit against the Town in the United States District Court, seeking ten million dollars for the land. What we are seeking is fair market value for this land.

In the past, we have had clients willing to pay large sums for this land, only to find that they could not develop it -- all because of actions by the Town. A major insurance company sought to locate its headquarters there, but gave up in July 1987 after talking to the Town.

We recently have received encouragement in our cause in the form of favorable court orders, upholding our Constitutional rights. The court has ordered the town to meet with us and explore the possibility of settling the case, which they had been unwilling to do. The court order also prohibited the issuance of a gag order, which the Town's $250 per hour private attorney sought to impose upon us.

Additionally, the court order gives us the encouragement that this is not regarded as a frivolous suit.

We are further encouraged by a recent case in Burlington where a landowner was awarded $12 million by the court after that town took land by eminent domain, offering only $800,000.

We seek to resolve this case. We ultimately seek to have the land disposed of in the manner that is best for the townspeople of Wilmington. If the Town wants to take the land, then the Town should offer to buy it from us, and resolve the matter. But we stand firm in our resolve to not have the land taken from us without just compensation.

In presenting this information we merely seek to let you, the taxpayers, know of this matter and its potential financial impact on the Town.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINE

By Sharon Kelley, G.R.I.
Kelley & Kompany

HELP YOUR BATHROOM SELL YOUR HOME

Very few people will buy a house because they're blown away by fantastic bathrooms. Buyers do, however, react to baths that are not well cared for, because these rooms are a reflection of the overall condition of the property.

While your home is on the market, keep each bathroom spotless. Get out the scouring powder, mildew remover, glass and tile cleaner and your scrub brush. If necessary, recaulk around the tub and shower. A new shower curtain, bath mat, and nice smelling soap can give the buyer one more positive reason for liking your home and perhaps deciding to buy it!

Many purchasers see plumbing as a potential major expense. Some may get nervous about dripping faucets, loose tiles, running toilets, and peeling paint on the ceilings of the baths themselves or in the rooms directly underneath them. As part of your premarketing preparations, make sure your plumbing is working properly and that any cosmetic damage caused by former leaks has been repaired.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate experts at Kelley & Kompany are ready to serve you.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Last Wednesday night I attended the school committee meeting at the town hall, where the school bus contract was to be awarded. The reason I went was because of the rumors that were going around previous to the awarding, rumors started right at the incumbent Wilmington base of operations, rumors such as the incumbent was not first or lowest bid, but that they need not worry because the next two lower bidders were not reliable and they were going to reduce the wages of the drivers.

I went to both lower bidders and they said that the base pay would be $9 per hour or $180.00 per week as the drivers were getting now. When the bids were opened on the 16th of March, 1988, it was asked when the successful bidder would be notified. Those in attendance were told that it was hoped that they would be notified at the next meeting. When that meeting passed with no decision it was then evident that problems were being encountered. I have been involved with the bidding of buses for approximately 16 years and the successful bidder always got a three year bid because of the fact that they had to meet all requirements stipulated in the bid process and find a place to keep buses in the town, recruit drivers, dispatcher etc.

Being a potential bidder, I attended the pre bid meeting where eight other bidders were present, being a former employee of one of the bidders present, I was then sure that I would not bid against him as I had decided that if he wasn't going to bid, then I would like to try.

Well anyway, I attended the bid opening, wrote down all the bidders' bids as they read off. After taking a few hours at assessing the figures, it showed that the current contractor was third low instead of low. This surprised me as they had the place for the buses already, they had the cb radios which the town required, they knew the routes, they had the buses, while the other two bidders had to estimate what

Wilmington.

With my figures I went to the meeting for the awarding, and when the chairman announced that they were going to go with the current contractor for a one year bid, I had a few quick things to think about before getting up to question the reason for a one year bid. I have been subject to verbal abuse by persons very close to me, it's like I'm supposed to take the attitude that it doesn't concern me, so why get involved. By not getting involved it would be the taking of the attitude of not caring which just showed in our annual elections when no one ran against some of the incumbents. As the following will show I did get involved and we are talking a very large sum of money that could have been saved by going for a three year bid instead of a one year bid, the saving in the first year alone is approximately $683.93 a day, so if you multiply that figure by 180 days that is some saving.

Just recently the chairman of the school committee said opening up negotiation with the school teachers, now even though they still have time on their present contract was as good as it would prove that they were appreciated and their contract would be extended now.

By accepting a three year contract on the buses would ensure the same thing, locking the contractor and the town up for at least three years instead of one. There is no way a new contractor can come into any town and bid on a one year contract because he would never recoup his losses in the one year. That is why not many companies bid for one year. In this case the only two who did have had previous experience in Wilmington and know the routes, procedures etc.

What did this do to competitive bidding in this town? Only time will tell. The chairman said that he rode in the buses and they were clean, with the guidelines set up in the bidding process, no matter what company bus he rode on, the results would be the same. I am beginning to think that I live in a rich town the way we just spend without any reasonable explanation. That $683.00 per day would sure help us for a year in other ways. Why we could even eliminate other major problems by hiring security, fighting drugs, or even cleaning up around the high school and even hiring a bus consultant if no one wants the job or headache as rumored.

Dear Larz:

The toxic pollution of our drinking water, of the air we breathe and of the environment in which we live and work adversely influences the health and economic future of our community. The production of toxic substances and their lingering presence, lurks insidiously to affect present and future generations. Existing laws and regulations currently attempt to control toxic pollution by protecting workers and by making it expensive for firms to dispose of their toxic wastes. However, these current laws do not prevent toxic waste production. Less toxics production means less hazardous waste and ultimately, less opportunity for toxics to negatively impact each and every one of us. In addition, pollution control and hazardous waste disposal is expensive. This means that by replacing toxic chemicals with non-toxic chemicals, substantial savings to participating businesses might also be realized. It is time to let common sense predominate and enact new legislation that reduces toxic use in Massachusetts.

At present such toxic use reduction legislation is being proposed in House Bill No. 1749 co-sponsored by Rep. Miceli. This bill proposes the following five essential points: 1) requiring toxics reporting for each stage of a given manufacturing process; 2) phasing out the most dangerous chemicals currently used by industry in Massachusetts today; 3) establishing timetables for toxics reports, phase outs and usereduction plans; 4) providing for citizen and worker involvement in reviewing reports, developing plans, inspecting facilities and suing violators; 5) granting the state the power to establish industry performance standards for achieving reduction. In total, these five essential points will lead to reduced toxics use in a way that insures proper implementation of the bill without comprising critical industrial vitality.

I would like to thank Rep Miceli for co-sponsoring this important legislation and look forward to his
His active support of this bill will help us all realize reduced toxic use and therefore, a healthier, more intelligent future.

Gregory B. Williams
Tewksbury

Dear Larz:

Residents of Wilmington, as in other communities, are facing an abundance of hazards from toxic chemicals. We are plagued by air and water pollution, and sickness and disease from handling these products. This pollution is increasingly destroying our earth's fragile ecology and poisoning its many inhabitants.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure!! Now is the time to reduce the use of toxics wherever possible. Some firms are reaping substantial savings through usereduction methods that replace toxic chemicals with non-toxic ones, substitute chemical processes with mechanical systems, or re-design production to reduce waste through greater efficiency.
Toxics use reduction can provide a special opportunity to make significant environmental, health, and economic gains. Such gains can be achieved with passage of "The Toxics Use Reduction Bill" (House Bill No. 1749). This legislation is currently in the Massachusetts House of Representatives and contains five important key points.
They are:

1 - Requirements for reporting toxics used-for each stage of the manufacturing process.

2 - A phasing out of the most dangerous chemicals.

3 - Establishment of timetables for toxics reports, phase-outs, and use of reduction plans.

4 - A provision for citizen and worker involvement in reviewing reports, developing plans, inspecting facilities, and suing violators.

5 - Granting the state the power to establish industry performance standards for achieving reduction.

H.1749 needs support from all of us. Wilmington is indeed fortunate to have both State Representatives
James R. Miceli and Geoffrey C.
Beckwith as co-sponsors of this bill. Please contact your representative and tell him that you care about stopping toxic pollution and making this Commonwealth a safer place in which to live.

Sincerely,
Joan Sadowski

Off to Haiti

Students and friends of the Abundant Life Christian School are in Haiti this week. From left, rear: Tom O'Toole, Jr., Wilmington; Tom O'Toole, Sr., Billerica; Shirley O'Toole, Billerica. Front: Karen White, Lynn; Faye Hancock, Wilmington; Matt McCarthy, Tewks-bury; and Rebecca Merna, Lowell.

Students are Haiti bound

the Abundant Life Christian School will travel to the West Indies Island of Haiti April 19-26. The group will be staying at New England and World Missions located in Leogane, approximately 17 miles outside of the capitol city of Port au Prince.

The group will be involved in several short term mission projects.
Feeding programs, clinic work, construction of mission buildings and assistance with agricultural projects will take up most of the group's time.

One group member, Tom O'Toole, Jr. is taking a 10 speed bike along on the trip. The bike will be given to a 17-year-old Haitian boy who currently walks 10 miles per day to receive schooling and nutritious meals from the mission.

Tewksbury resident Bob Thomson.
A day trip has been planned to visit the village of Jacmel which is located on the Caribbean side of the island. Jacmel is known for its blue lagoons and white sandy beaches.

Haiti is the poorest country in the western hemisphere. The group is hoping to help meet some of the physical needs of the Haitian villagers who live near the mission compound.

Wilmington school news

Captain Bruce Butters is 'Top Gun'

Wilmington Home and School Assoc.
The Wilmington Home and School Association has announced that Dr. John Delaney, principal of the Parker Middle School in Reading, will be the featured speaker at the next meeting. That meeting will be held Tuesday, April 26 at the Fourth of July Building at 7:30 p.m.

Hopefully, those who attend will learn the answers to questions on the Middle School philosophy, the academic structure of middle school, the inclusion of sixth graders in the school, teachers' approach to the middle school concept, and the principal's role.

The public is invited to join members at this informal and informational meeting. A question and answer period will follow Dr. Delaney's talk and refreshments will be served.

Shawsheen School
Folksingers Jeff and Jeff performed some special tunes for the entire student body April 6. The program was sponsored by the school PAC.

On April 15, students enjoyed a performance by the Fascinating Rhythm Dance Co.

Wilmington High
The next school PAC meeting will be Monday, April 25 in the school library at 7:30 p.m. Most of the evening will be devoted to a discussion on scholarship aid for this year's senior class.

Kidsplace
Reminder: There are still tickets available for the famous Gerwick Puppets this coming Sunday. Wilmington children and their parents are invited to enjoy an hour long show featuring the puppets at the Shriners' Auditorium. Tickets may be purchased for $3 in advance and $3.50 at the door. Showtime is 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. April 24.

To order tickets, contact Ann Plunkett (657-6036) or Anne Falanga (658-4029). All profits benefit the Kidsplace playground.

Rental space is still available for the Kidsplace Flea Market and Craft Fair to be held on Wilmington Town Common Saturday April 30 (May 1, raindate). Space costs $20 for a 12 x 12 foot area.

The public is encouraged to join friends and neighbors on the 30th. Kidsplace will sell t-shirts, buy-a-boards, baked goods, white

The following students were named students of the month for March.

Kindergarten, AM, Daniel Keating; PM, Matthew Jones.

Grade one, room three, Gian Carlo Romaagnoli; room five, Megan Lojek.

Grade two, room one, Sarah Powers, room four, Alexia DeVellis.

Grade three, room 11, Adam Mazza; room 13, Christopher Berg.

Grade four, room 8, Eric Jones; room 10, Charlene Dalio.

Physical education, Jeanne Ficociello; music, Darren Bishop; computer, Jamie Austin.

Mr. Jim Gillis presented awards to the students at an assembly program April 12. He was extremely personable and made every recipient feel special. Mr. Tikonoff hosted the assembly. The PAC provided refreshments.

Note: This is your column. Please submit all newsworthy school items to the new Town Crier office by Monday evenings or call Arlene Surprenant (658-5696).

Capt. Bruce Butters, an F-16 pilot in the U.S. Air Force, stationed at Torrejon Air Force Base in Spain, was announced January 29 as the winner of the Top Gun Award at the air base. The award was based on individual bombing performance for the last six months of 1987.

The competition was among the pilots of three squadrons of F-16 planes. Captain Butters scored 76.28 points, and his nearest competitor, in another squadron, scored 69.46. The 612th squadron has placed first in the Top Gun award for the past three years.

Capt. Butters, now 27 years old, is the son of Robert and Ethel Butters of Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington. A graduate of Wilmington High School and the University of New Hampshire, he was a guest of the Rotary Club of Wilmington six years ago, just after receiving his commission as a Second Lieutenant.

Capt. Butters has been stationed at the Torrejon Air Base for the past two years. With him is his wife

Diane, and their son Bruce Jr., now three years old. Torrejon Air Base is located near Madrid, in Spain.

About three years ago, while flying over the Gulf of Mexico in company with an instructor Capt. Butters had to "bail out" because of malfunction of the plane. He was rescued, while floating with his life preserver.

Capt. Butters has logged over 1000 hours as pilot of an F-16. That is the equivalent of flying for five years.

25 years ago

The April 25, 1963 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that -

The Baldwin Civic League proposed a discussion of the controversial new Woburn Street School. Chairman E. Hayward Bliss announced plans for the discussion to be held May 7 at WHS cafeteria.

A brush fire which may have been started by sparks from a passing train endangered a half dozen homes in North Wilmington. Several out of town fire departments assisted in combating the blaze which at one time threatened the home of Joseph Brown on Ballardvale Street and the nearby Anomonisto home.

Town Manager Jerry Bouchard ordered the tearing down of the partition wall between his office and the former meeting room, to make one big room, where ever one, even the "Vigilant Dozen," can get a seat during meetings.

Pictured was a meeting in the civil defense room where selectmen were talking with planning and water board members about the possible new well field adjacent to the ballfield in the town park. Planning Board Chairman Jim Banda was seen leaning against the "stanchion" (lally column?) in the background while another station was being held up by Water Commissioner Waldo Stevens.

Commander Paul Farrell, of the VFW presented plans for an enlarged building at that group's Main Street site. Plans showed the addition of a story. The appearance before the appeal board was necessary because zoning laws had changed since the start of the building's construction back in the 1940s.

Preliminary plans submitted by James DeCarolis of Tewksbury, for an extension of Marcia Road, with 25 new house lots to be located in the back of the proposed Woburn Street School were turned down by the planning board on the grounds that proper traffic circulation was not shown.

The Carter Lecture Fund would present the "world's foremost undersea photographer, Dimitri Rebikoff," at WHS, Saturday. Admission would be free.

The 1963 tax rate was set at $38.00 according to Principal Assessor Stanley Webber. The figure was an increase of $3.50 over that of 1962.

Wilmington Rotary, with nearly 100 percent attendance hosted the District Conference. Pictured at the speaker's desk was Roy Wahl, WHS senior who won the oratorical contest and a trip to Quebec. Also in the photo were his Quebec partner, Peter Brown, Past President Ed Osberg, Rotary Governor Bill Stevens, President Larry Foley and the Rev. Terry Clay Thomason.

William Kelloway

William C. Kelloway of Salem Street, North Andover, formerly of Wilmington died at home Sunday, April 18, 1988 following a long illness.

Born in Chelsea, Mr. Kelloway lived in Wilmington for 19 years, in Florida for 11 years and in North Andover for the past nine months.

Mr. Kelloway was a World War II Marine Corp veteran and was retired from Nissan Motors Corp., where he had worked as the district parts sales manager. He also formerly worked for Chrysler Corp. and he formerly owned a Dodge dealership in Peabody.

He is survived by his wife, Jeanette Hearne Kelloway, his daughter, Lisa A. of North Andover and four sons, Donald L. and William C. of Methuen, and Gary A. and Scott D. of North Andover.

Survivors also include his brothers, Oscar Kelloway of Wolfboro, N.H. and the Rev. Aubrey Kelloway of Kittery Point, Maine, and his sister, Mrs. Herbert (Evelyn) Sheets, Norfolk Va. He also leaves five grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at the First Congregational Church, Methuen.

Arrangements were in charge of the Kenneth H. Pollard Funeral Home, Methuen.

Memorial contributions may be made to the, American Cancer Society, 853 Main St., Suite 205, Tewksbury, 01876.

Reading Light wants you

When was the last time you were asked by your electric utility to give them input on your electric rates; what do you prefer as a future source of electric generation for your utility; or what kinds of local management programs should your electric utility employ to keep costs down and service efficiency up?

Whether you're retired, a professional, hourly wage earner in industry or clerical, a home maker or a single apartment dweller, you could have a say in all these areas if you desire. All you have to do is volunteer your time to serve on an ad-hoc citizens' advisory committee being formed by the Reading Municipal Light Department for its four community service area, Wilmington, Reading, North Reading and Lynnfield.

Applications for nomination to the committee will be available throughout this week at the Town Hall (Town Clerk's office) or by contacting Jane Ahearn of the Reading Municipal Light Dept. (944-1340) to have an application sent to you. Applications must be returned to the Reading Municipal Light Dept., 25 Haven St., Reading, MA.

"The purpose of the RMLD Commissioners for such committees," said Len Rucker, General Manager of the RMLD, "is to encourage citizens' input into some of the major decisions the commission must make that effect all ratepayers. From time to time, we encounter situations that require broad and varied consumer input. We try to make decisions in the best interest of our customers. It is our hope that the ad-hoc committee will help us to continue to improve the quality of service to the RMLD customers, expedite the decision making process, as well as influence decisions and actions affecting the RMLD's as well as the community's interests.

"It (the committee) will also help the RMLD Commission meet their goal of fostering a genuine sense of public ownership of the utility," he added.

An ad-hoc advisory committee will be formed to address specific issues. A Steering Committee consisting of one town appointed representative each from Reading, Wilmington, North Reading and Lynnfield and the RMLD General Manager will select the ad-hoc committees. Each ad-hoc committee will review the designated issue and deliver a public recommendation directly to the RMLD Commission.

"The ad-hoc committees will be strictly voluntary and will meet on specific issues. A separate ad-hoc committee will be formed for each issue," Rucker said.

Wilmington senior topics

Town Meeting Saturday

The Town Meeting will be held in the high school auditorium Saturday, April 23 starting at 1 p.m. How our real estate tax dollars will be spent will be voted on at this meeting. If you have a preference or objections on a motion, it will do you no good to complain if the vote did not go your way unless you were in attendance at the meeting.

Nurse April 21

Nurse Abbie will be at the center Thursday, April 21. She will be checking blood pressures and giving diabetes test. If you have not had a diabetes test for some time or if you never had one it would be to your advantage to have Abbie check your sugar level Thursday. By taking a simple test you will know if your sugar level is high or low. If it is high, medication through your doctor will bring it under control, before it controls you.

Risk assessment test

In Abbie's office at the Town Hall, she can give you a complete risk assessment test on appointment only. If you have not had the complete test, or if you have not had one for six months or longer, you should consider having it taken.

The tests she will give you are for cholesterol, glucose, potassium,

Meeting changed

The meeting of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority scheduled for Thursday, April 21 has been changed to Tuesday, April 26 at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held in the office of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce at 11 Middlesex Avenue, Suite 10.

triglyceride and uric acid. The tests are free. Abbie will charge only for the material she has to buy to take the test, which is very reasonable. Early detection of any of the above can prevent serious medical problems, such as, heart attacks, high blood pressure, or strokes.

Whist party April 25

The second whist of April will be held in the function room Monday, April 25 starting at 1 p.m. As on the first whist, three envelopes containing $5 each, donated to the seniors by the Kiwanis Club will be a prize drawing. Also at this whist a drawing will be held on the $25 gift certificate for Demoulas Supermarket, donated to the seniors by the Rotary Club.

If you do not have a ticket in the box on the counter for this month's drawing, go to the center before April 25 and fill in a ticket. They are free to all Wilmington senior citizens. We know this $25 gift certificate would be a tremendous help in stretching the limited income of many of our seniors. To select one would be unfair to others. But if your name is not in the box you cannot win. If you are a shutin and want to be included, call the office. We will put a ticket in for you.

Spring is coming

With spring popping up around us and the terrible winter we experienced passing into history, more of our seniors are getting out of their homes and coming to the center. We are seeing good participation in our Monday morning exercise classes, that are free to all seniors. The walking on Monday mornings; art class Monday afternoon; ceramic

Tuesday mornings; craft class Wednesday mornings; swimming at Shawsheen Tech Wednesday mornings; bowling Wednesday afternoon; exercise Thursday morning; Dancing Thursday afternoon; bingo Friday afternoon and on the second and fourth Monday, whist in the afternoon.

If none of the above interest you, how about a game of cards or pool in the game room? If you are newly retired there is no better way to become accustomed to filling a long day than to go to the center and join as many of the above programs as you can. You will meet many new friends to replace those lost with your retirement.

Fair meeting

The Fair Committee will have its second meeting Wednesday, April 20 at 10 a.m. in the function room. This week the members will be working on the raffle. You should be at this meeting if you would like to work on a table at the Fair.

Hearing specialist

Our hearing specialist will be at the center this Friday April 22 starting at 10 a.m.

April social the 28th

The Augustine therapeutic social will be April 28. We have a waiting list. If you feel you will not be attending this social, we would appreciate a call. You will make a senior on the waiting list very happy.

Dr. Leavitt

Podiatrist Dr. Leavitt will be at the center Friday, April 29. He will be checking and treating ailments of the feet starting at 9 a.m. The doctor will be at the center until he sees all eniors waiting for his services.

Wilmington seniors

Stray

This Springer spaniel is presently being held at the Wilmington dog pound. He will be available for adoption on April 25, if not claimed by his owner.

Dogs in pound

Male Springer spaniel, brown and white, clipped tail picked up April 14 on Old Main Street near Woburn line.

Female German shepherd, black and tan, no collar, picked up near DRC on Concord Street April 19.

Female beagle-mix, white with black spots and black on face, picked up April 9 on Concord Street near Route 93.

All dogs not claimed by their owners within 10 days are eligible for adoption.

The dog officer may be reached at 658-7845.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending April 19, Wilmington police officers responded to 11 accidents, 25 alarms, three disturbances, three fires, three assault and batteries and two domestic problems.

Twenty arrests and four protective custody detentions were made. Medical assistance was rendered twice, alert neighbors reported nine incidents of suspicious activity and one person was reported missing.

Five trailbike complaints and two complaints involving traffic were logged, along with a threat complaint. Two larcenies were checked out, five incidents of vandalism were investigated and eight service calls involving lockouts, etc were answered.

Arrests

Two Lawrence people were arrested and another man placed under protective custody after officers responded to a report of a shoplifting incident at TJ Maxx Tuesday morning. John McMahon, 29 of Boxford Street, Lawrence was charged with shoplifting and possession of a controlled substance, marijuana. Nancy Anderson of the same address was also charged with shoplifting.

Both suspects were taken directly to Woburn Court. McMahon was held on bail due to two other outstanding warrants in effect.

Tuesday night Officer White arrested Duncan McNeill, 19 of Mountain Road, Manchester, N.H. after a computer check revealed his license suspended in Mass.

Early Wednesday morning, Officer Chalifour arrested Kimberly Scarfo, 19, of Biggar Avenue, Wilmington after a check revealed her license suspended.

Later on Wednesday, after investigating a report of vandalism to a car at Diamond Crystal, Officer Jon Shepard arrested James Hayes, 19 of 29 Chestnut Street, Wilmington. Hayes was charged with attempted larceny of a motor vehicle, larceny of parts, possession of burglarious tools and breaking and entering of a motor vehicle in the daytime. He was held over night to appear in Woburn District Court Thursday morning.

Backyard Gardening

by Hugh Wiberg
This weekend is pea planting time in New England, but before we get into that:

I received a phone call from a local gardener who complained of having little white maggots in her radishes last year. What, she asked, can be done to eliminate this aggravation in 1988? Problems we cannot see are hard to handle. With our vegetables, almost as much goes on below the surface of the soil, as above. Root chewing insects are found in almost all gardens, yet we tend to assume there are none in our garden until there is so much evidence something is wrong that we are finally forced to react.

This woman cautioned me that she is an organic gardener, and wasn't about to dump "tons" of chemicals into her garden. Based on that, I advised her to (a) plant her radishes in a different part of the garden this year and (b) hold off planting her radishes until the second week of June. After that time, she will have little or no trouble with root maggots. These pesky white grubs are in the soil as the lava of several types of flies in April and May. By early June they have pupated and moved out, thereby ending their feeding period in the soil.

If you've noticed that some of your vegetables just plain do not do well for no apparent reason, you may have a buildup of root chawers in your garden. This is especially likely if you have been planting the crops in the same place year after year. The most common below ground pests are root nematodes, wireworms, and maggots. Nematodes are tiny, threadlike root feeders, and are one of the significant reasons for pea failures in established gardens. Wireworms are those hard bodied, orange, inch long insects with segmented bodies we sometimes see as we are turning the soil.

An efficient means of dealing with root chewing insects is to apply Diazinon, this weekend or next. This insecticide, in liquid or granular form, is available at all garden supply stores including Pinewood Gardens and Mahoney's. Directions for use are clear and simple on the container, and should be followed to the letter. I have been asked if Diazinon is harmful to earthworms which, as all good gardeners know, are among our best friends as soil aerators and fertilizer manufacturers. In a few instances I have used Diazinon (I rarely need it since I rotate my plantings every year) I can only observe that I have seen no lessening of the earthworm population. From what I can read and see, the earthworms, which move surprisingly fast through the soil, simply vacate the treated area until the effect of the Diazinon has worn off, a matter of a week or 10 days.

What follows with peas is a method I have used for 20 years, with consistent success.

In order to insure good results with peas, there are a few ground rules which should be considered, including:

1. A new location from last year's planting.
2. A spot in the garden receiving at least six hours of sunlight each day, and
3. An organically rich soil, loose to a depth of 12 inches.

Peas are a cool weather crop. They have to be in by April 25 at the latest, to be harvested 60 to 70 days later. If you plant them in May, you may lose the crop, since pea vines cannot tolerate the heat of July. This weekend is the perfect time to sow pea seeds in our locale.

Since pea vines are natural climbers, we should provide something for them to cling to. I have had good luck using three foot chicken wire fencing. Short of that, peas will climb over and around sticks, twigs, and brush, however wire fencing is more efficient and looks much better, if appearance is important to you.

For a fast start with nearly 100 percent germination, soak your seeds in a bowl of water from 12 to 16 hours before planting, then set the seeds into the soil while they are still wet.

I recommend planting double rows of peas, about 10 inches apart. The fencing runs down between the rows, and is staked in place when the plants are up two or three inches. Most seed packets (including Burpee's) recommend planting the seeds an inch apart in the rows. If your soil is in reasonably fertile condition, you can sow two seeds an inch, staggering them as you plant. The seeds should be planted at a depth of two to three inches.

With normal weather conditions, the first plants should push through the soil in 10 to 12 days. Before the shoots are five inches tall, the fencing (or brush if you prefer) should be set in place between the double rows. Stake the fence very six feet and tie the poles to your fencing with string or twisties. I have been asked if metal fencing will burn the plants on hot days. This is a common misconception; after two decades of using wire fencing to trellis the pea plants, I have never seen that happen.

From this point on, it is just a matter of seeing that the plants are watered once a week, if rainfall is inadequate. Novice gardeners sometimes have a problem knowing when the peas are ready to be harvested. When the pods begin to plump up, it is time to begin checking daily to determine the best time to harvest the crop. The entire planting should be picked within one week of when the first pods have matured.

Peas freeze beautifully! Whatever part of the harvest cannot be eaten within a week or so should be podded, blanched in boiling water, quick-cooled in ice water, and packed in plastic storage bags and frozen. They come out of the freezer up to a year later at about 90 percent of their original taste and texture.

Next week we will consider fencing in the garden to protect against rabbits and woodchucks.

Woodville Communications donates phone system

Woodville Communications, Inc. of Tewksbury has donated a complete phone system to the Woburn Council of Social Concern (WCSC).

The Council is a not-for-profit, multi-purpose human service agency, serving people of all ages in Woburn and 20 surrounding communities with a variety of educational, counseling, crisis intervention, day care, and social services.

Woodville donated an AT&T Horizon System, including 24 phones and a reception system. The donation updates the Council's phone system to touch-tone capability and provides other equipment and service improvements.

"This important donation will help us to communicate with our clients and volunteers more effectively and efficiently," said Council executive Dean Solomon. "We are grateful to Woodville Communications for their sensitivity to community needs and their generosity."

Woodville specializes in installation, sales and service from their headquarters at 1501 Main St., Tewksbury.

The equipment was installed this week at WCSC offices at 19 Campbell St., Woburn. The offices house the Council's management operations, Youth Services, Child Care Collaborative, Hispanic Program, and Food Pantry.

The donation was made through the recommendation of Rick Pomet of Nelson Communications in Waltham, management consultants in voice and data communications since 1971.

DRC reports first quarter results

Dynamics Research Corporation, 60 Concord Street, Wilmington, reported that revenues for the first quarter ended March 19, 1988 were $20,414,000 compared to $18,363,000 for the comparable period a year ago, an increase of 11 percent.

Net income for the quarter was $726,000 or $1.4 per share, up to eight percent from $673,000 or $1.3 per share in the first quarter of 1987. Per share values reflect the five-for-four stock split declared in September 1987.

Dynamics Research Corporation provides a wide range of specialized technical services to the Department of Defense and manufactures components for industrial measurement and control.

Parker leases space

E.M. Parker, a distributor of radiology products, has leased 24,000 sq. ft. of space at 400 Research Drive in the Wilmington Technology Park. The space will serve as the firm's corporate headquarters.

The Wilmington Technology Park, located off Ballardvale Street, is now 95 percent leased. It is owned by Tambone Corp.

Job opportunities in retail sales merchandising

Powerforce, Inc., the nation's leading supplier of part-time retail sales merchandisers to consumer goods manufacturers, will sponsor an open house Friday, April 22, at the Best Western Hotel, 477 Totten Pond Rd., Waltham, Ma. The open house will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Karen Steffan, eastern regional manager for Powerforce, and Nancy Cooper, area manager, will be on hand to discuss job opportunities and the concept of sales merchandising.

"These positions are particularly attractive to homemakers who want to work but still want a flexible schedule that coincides with family and home life," Ms. Steffan explains. "Retired persons who want to stay active in the workforce on a part-time basis are also ideal candidates."

Sales merchandisers, according to Ms. Steffan, visit retail stores on a regular basis to insure that a manufacturer's products are in supply, displayed properly, priced correctly, and, in general, well represented. Merchandisers also write orders, build displays, act as a liaison between store management and the manufacturer, etc.

Powerforce merchandisers are offered flexible work schedules, which typically include a maximum of 20 hours per week, four days per week.

Homemakers, retirees and other interested candidates interested in attending the open house are asked to RSVP to Ms. Steffan at 1-800-443-7239. Refreshments will be served.

Analog expands

Analog Devices has leased 32,303 sq. ft. at Ballardvale Park, which will serve as expansion space for the firm's Wilmington division. The firm will occupy approximately one third of 181 Ballardvale St., a 105,665 sq. ft. building. Ballardvale Park is the first complex north of Route 125 on Ballardvale Street. There are eight other tenants in the park, including Allstate Insurance and Olympus Corporation.

Ballardvale Park is owned by Vazza Associates. R.M. Bradley handled the lease for Analog.

Students pool ideas on SADD

Representatives from six area high schools met recently at Shawsheen Tech to discuss each school's S.A.D.D. program, and to mull formation of a regional organization.

S.A.D.D., the acronym for Students Against Driving Drunk, is an active organization in each of the high schools, as student representatives reported. "We're all doing a lot of good things, and all of you should be commended on what you're doing," said Bruce Perkins, Shawsheen Tech guidance director, who with Bill Damery, Shawsheen S.A.D.D. president and other officers, organized the regional meeting for students from Bedford, Billerica, Burlington, Tewksbury and Wilmington, as well as Shawsheen.

Yet, as Billerica Police Officer Michael Tammaro pointed out, continuing efforts are needed. "We have an alcohol problem. We live in an alcohol-drinking society, with additional pressure from advertising and television. It is good that you come here and do this," he said. Tammaro urged the students to know their town safety officers, many of whom would be willing to participate in a program.

Student-Run Programs
"Keep the education up, even after graduation," he said. "Come back and set up a program to keep it going for the sophomores and juniors."

Perkins noted that "programs that are most successful are student-run. The whole thrust of S.A.D.D. is that it is a student-directed activity."

Students from the participating high schools reported on some of those activities in what Damery referred to as "brainstorming session" that yielded a decision to meet again (April 28 at Burlington High) to investigate the formation of a regional chapter, with Tammaro as advisor and a representative from the S.A.D.D. organization as speaker.

Mark Presti said Bedford High has been "really responsive" to S.A.D.D. activity, which has included guest speaker Ron Burton, former New England Patriot. For fundraising, Bedford has held a basketball game and a dance with a deejay, Presti added. Another dance is scheduled for April 30, and prom week has been designated S.A.D.D. week.

Sharon Curry, reporting for Billerica High, announced the sale of pom-poms at the Thanksgiving Day football game and an upcoming sale of ice cream sundaes as fundraisers. The Billerica chapter will raffle limousine service for both the junior and senior proms, and is discussing the possibility of a regional walkathon.

Burlington High School's S.A.D.D. chapter is three years old, with a regular budget that enables the chapter to invite guest speakers for all four classes and distribute S.A.D.D. key chains to all students. Burlington also ran a bowl-a-thon and will hold a car wash this month. The chapter is considering displaying a wrecked car outside the school just before the prom.

The play "Eddie," depicting the true story of a teenager who died from drug and alcohol abuse, was co-sponsored at Tewksbury Memorial High School by S.A.D.D. and several community organizations. Students took the roles of Eddie's friends and relatives, with an actor provided to play the title role. Performances during the school day and at night were held. "This brought the parents out, and there was a full house," reported Justine Short, who noted the play was also presented at the junior high.

Tewksbury S.A.D.D. members also visited disabled students at the Center School for Halloween, held a car wash, are selling coffee and Danish at candidates night, and will hold a candy week in May. For the junior prom, S.A.D.D. coaters will appear under souvenir wine glasses, and students will receive a card with a dime that says, "If you need a ride, call us." Short said members are now "dealing with the legalities" of the students providing post-prom rides.

All night post prom gatherings or breakfasts are sometimes held, such as one sponsored by Shawsheen Tech last spring, to give students a non-alcoholic alternative for after the dance. At Shawsheen, raffles and a dance were scheduled fundraisers. Tammaro presented a program, called "Scared Stiff" at the school. Shawsheen was also responsible for organizing the regional meeting.

In Wilmington, a smashed car, displayed two years ago, caused a lot of discussion, according to Sheryl Stewart, who said S.A.D.D. has been active at Burlington High for five years. Fundraising events include an ice cream smorgasbord at the open house and a balloon drive. Stewart hopes to obtain a copy of a drinking and driving tape she viewed in driving school, to show to fellow students during S.A.D.D. week. The safety officer will visit the school, and a display case, with posters from the police department will underline the hazards of driving drunk. In the planning stage is an effort to obtain discounts at popular establishments for S.A.D.D. members.

Problems with 'Contract for Life'

All representatives said their schools had the "Contract for Life," which students and parents are urged to sign. Several representatives said there has been some difficulty in getting parents to sign, and "we're also finding the forms on the floor of the school," several students said. S.A.D.D. members agreed ongoing programs are needed to keep interest high, and that "talks are more effective than literature." Speakers, however, cost money, and most schools needed to organize fundraising to attain other goals. Students affirmed that parent interest and response is important.

"Adults are role models for the students," A Tewksbury representative said. "We want to get the town more involved. Once the parents stop drinking, then we can get more kids to stop drinking."

Damery said at the next meeting a planning committee with a representative from each school would be formed and a regional fundraiser would be discussed.

McNamara pitches no-hitter

TMHS sophomore pitcher Joanne McNamara pitched a no-hitter Friday, blanking the Dracut Middies, 1-0 in Merrimack Valley Conference softball action.

Joanne outdueled Dracut's Kim Page, the tough luck loser who pitched a two-hitter while striking out 11 Tewksbury batters. The Middies managed just three baserunners against McNamara on a walk and two TMHS errors.

Cathy Driscoll drove home the lone Tewksbury run with an RBI single. Thirdbaseman Tricia Mazzone also spanked a single for the Redmen.

Sue Beaulieu was the defensive star for the winners with a superb catch in rightfield to preserve the no-hitter.

North Reading Basketball camp

The seventh annual North Reading Basketball Camp will be held at North Reading High School from July 18-22. The camp is for boys entering grades five through 10.

Directing the camp will again be North Reading basketball coach Barry Kipnes. Other members of the staff are Rich Butterworth of Hamilton-Wenham, Joe Casey of Masconomet, John Doherty of North Reading, Paul Finn of Newburyport, Barry Humphries of Greater Lowell and Henry McCarthy of Winthrop.

The camp day will run from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Heavy emphasis will be placed on fundamentals and all areas of individual play will be covered. The program of instruction includes drill stations, instructional video tapes, staff and guest lectures and controlled scrimmages. Games will be played every day, with each camper playing an equal amount of time.

In the past six years campers have attended from 24 different communities. Many former campers have played on their freshman, junior varsity and varsity teams. Enrollment is limited in order to allow for maximum attention to each camper. Last year all the camp openings were filled.

Beside the program of instruction, each camper receives a camp t-shirt, a certification of attendance and a coach's evaluation. Each camper will also receive a 24 page booklet entitled 'Skills and Drills: The Fundamentals of Basketball and Much More'.

For more information and a camp brochure, please call Barry Kipnes at 664-2471 or write to Barry Kipnes, B-1 Colonial Drive number 10, Andover, MA. 01810.

Boudreau blanks Concord-Carlisle

The TMHS baseball squad stayed on roll this past week, improving their record to 4-1, as senior righthander Doug Boudreau tossed a 3-0 five-hitter over Concord-Carlisle in non-league action.

Pete Frend and Boudreau have shutdown opponents almost completely through the first five games of the season.

Boudreau struckout 12 and did not walk a batter in improving his record to 2-0 on the season.

John Miller drove home the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the top of the seventh inning. Tewksbury's other run scored on an error and an RBI single by all-star catcher Chris Mader.

Wildcats crush Matignon, 12-2

Senior lefthander Pat Nally tossed a three-hitter and his teammates exploded for five runs in the bottom of the second inning, as Wilmington routed Matignon, 12-2 in non-league baseball action Friday afternoon.

Nally ignored the bone chilling cold to fan four and help coach Dick Scanlon's Wildcats even their record at 2-2 on the young season.

The five run second inning rally was sparked by singles from Scott McMillan and Steve Killilea, each driving in two runs.

A single by Joe McMenimen and walks to Tom Moran and Scott McMillan also help to fuel the explosion.

Tom Moran rounds third and heads for home as the Wildcats evened their record with a 12-2 romp past Matignon.

Strategy session

Wilmington coach Dick Scanlon discusses strategy as his team prepares to head into the bulk of its Merrimack Valley Conference schedule this week.

Wildcat rally

Wilmington High School senior Joe McMenimen crosses the plate with one of the five runs that the Wildcats scored in the bottom of the second inning to put away a 12-2 victory over Matignon Friday afternoon.

Cowens key speaker May 1-3

"Better people make better athletes." So says Dave Cowens, former Boston Celtic and current chairman of the New England Sports Museum. Cowens believes that today's young athletes are over-coached and under-prepared for careers in sports.

That's the message he'll take to the first Annual Basketball Congress May 1-3 in Springfield where he'll address over 200 coaches, athletic directors, recreation program administrators and community officials.

"Today's kids need to be taught the fundamentals not just of sport, but of life," says Cowens. "They need to understand that if they lack the discipline to stay in school and do well at their studies, they'll certainly never make it in professional sports." That's another major point with Cowens. He maintains that not everyone should aspire to play professionally. "There are equally satisfying and rewarding jobs in sports marketing, administration, journalism and medicine. The secret is in discovering where your talent lies and then giving it your all."

That's why in his speeches to junior high and high school students, Cowens stresses teamwork - the ability to work with others, self-sacrifice, hard work and dedication, rather than natural ability, as his keys to success.

Traditionally one to let his actions speak louder than words, Cowens has dedicated the New England Sports Museum to preserving the sports heritage of the region so that aspiring young athletes can gain a better perspective on sports and on themselves. The Museum houses a library, sports memorabilia, artifacts and features current exhibits like "75 years of Fenway Park Memories," and "The Artistry of Larry Bird."

Why the change of heart from player to preacher? "Too few players make it into the pro ranks," says Cowens. "Making it in front of the camera, or on the sidelines can be just as tough and just as rewarding. But you've got to make it in the classroom first."

Tewksbury gymnast earns bronze medal

Tewksbury's Jillian Schleicher recently competed in the United States Gymnastics Federation (USGF) Massachusetts' State Championship Meet held April 9 and 10.

The 13-year-old won bronze medals in the vault and balance beam and with an all-around score of 66.6 earned the opportunity to compete in the USGF Regional Meet (New England and New York region) which will be held April 23 and 24 in Keene, New Hampshire.

Jillian is a Class II gymnast, training 16 to 20 hours per week with Denise and Reggie Walker at Denise Walker's World of Gymnastics in Lowell.

During the past season Jillian has competed in many local meets as well as the Kingston Tiger Invitational (RI), the New England Cup (CT) and the Reno National Junior Invitational (NV). This is her fourth year of competitive gymnastics and her sixth year of training.

Bay State Games bowling

Ten pin bowling is one of the newest events to be named to the Olympic Games sports roster, and a sport that will see its first appearance as a Bay State Games sport this summer. Bowling is one of the largest participatory sports in Massachusetts, and if the numbers prove correct, bowlers may be one of the largest groups of competitors in the 1988 Bay State Games.

Qualifying tryouts will be taking place over the next two weeks as bowlers from across the state attempt to earn a spot in the Bay State Games Finals to be held July 12-17 in Boston. Any Massachusetts bowler may tryout in the region in which he or she lives or bowls, but not both.

Bowlers will compete in the following divisions: Scholastic: age 12 through high school juniors; Open: high school seniors through age 25; Masters: (A) 26-35; (B) 36-45; (C) 46-55; and (D) 56 and up.

The tryouts are scheduled for April 23, 24 and 30 and May 1, 7 and 8. There will be in-house qualifying for those bowlers not in sanctioned leagues or for those who did not qualify in the league tryouts held earlier.

Bowling houses may use any of the above dates to hold Bay State Games tryouts. Bowlers should check with their local lanes to see when they are holding the Bay State Games qualifying rounds.

Entry forms for the Bay State Games are available at area bowling centers. For more information, call 727-3227.

Raider hockey tryouts

Tryouts for the North Shore Raiders Hockey Club playing in the Metropolitan Boston Hockey League, will be held at the Town Line Twin Rinks, Rte. 114, Danvers on the following dates.

Saturday, May 7 and Saturday May 14, Squirt Minor, 11:50 a.m., DOB, 1979; Squirt Major, 1 p.m.,

DOB, 1978; Pee wee Minor, 2:10, DOB 1977; Pee wee Major, 3:20 DOB 1976; Bantam Minor 4:30 DOB 1975; Bantam Majors, call David Harkins for information 631-4863.

Tryouts for Mites will be held in September. For more information call Jack Guerin, 475-7065.

Road race Sunday

The Middlesex County Sheriff's Department will hold its annual 10K road race, McGonigle's Run, to benefit the Jimmy Fund Sunday, April 24.

Registration will begin at 10 a.m. directly across from the Billerica House of Correction on Treble Cove Road. The fee is $7 payable to the Jimmy Fund.

T-shirts and refreshments will be provided for all runners. A children's mile race will be held prior to the adult race at no fee for children. Entertainment and refreshments will be provided for the children.

For more information, please call 729-9698 or 494-4400.

Sports deadline

The Town Crier sports deadline is Monday nights at 6 p.m. Any copy received after that deadline will not be included in that week's sports section. The Town Crier appreciates story tips and schedules.

Kids need to learn

by Bill Conlon
Kids learn as they grow. That's how we all grew to become so wise and thoughtful. (Yeah, right.)

But the hardest thing for most kids to learn, especially when they go fishing, is how to be truly subtle. I saw two things recently that made me wonder if perhaps something isn't missing from our lesson plan. Some kids take a rather -- ahem -- heavy handed approach to fishing, so let's put on the professor's cap for a few minutes.

Everyone over the age of 15 can move on, if they'd like. This one is meant for those kids who aren't old enough to buy a fishing license yet. If any of you learn something new from this, then maybe you'd better think about turning your license back in to the town clerk!

First, I saw what had to be the absolute worst-ever way to use a rubber frog lure recently, at Silver Lake in Wilmington.

One youngster was obviously going for bass (at least I hope so) since rubber frogs are only good on bass, pickerel and pike. Silver Lake has both bass and pike (yes, pike), so I figured out the quarry quick enough.

But there were two problems with the kid's approach:

For one thing, the frogs haven't become active yet. Try it. Just listen to any pond at night this week for the "barump" of a bullfrog. Odd, but the sound isn't there. You might hear the chirping of spring peepers, but the heavyweight frogs are still asleep in the mud. The kid might just as well been trolling with a side of beef.

But the silliest part -- which I just couldn't bring myself to laugh at -- was the kid was fishing the rubber frog BEHIND A BOBBER!

Like everyone else out there, I grew up fishing with a bobber. For live bait, they work fine.

But I've never, ever, not once, seen a frog chasing a bobber, and neither have the fish.

When you use any kind of lure, kids, you just have to feel for the tug coming up the line. Watching a bobber is fine if you're fishing with worms, but beyond they just aren't worth a hoot.

I never saw who made the second offense, but it had to be a kid. It just had to.

I was fly-fishing the Shawsheen River last week, just downstream from Bridge Street in Tewksbury, when I happened to notice a lure hanging from a branch overhead. Never one to pass up free fishing tackle, I looped my fly line over the branch and hauled it down.

Hooked into the branch was a cork popper, which is a standard piece of equipment for fly fishing. But whoever lost that popper was using it WRONG. Very wrong!

The popper, instead of having a snip of thin line trailing from the eye, was attached to a six-inch steel leader, the kind you use to keep lunker salmon from biting through your monofilament! Hmmm.

That steel leader looked strong enough to support my full weight, and I'm no feather, believe me. Just for a laugh I dropped the whole thing into the river, and it sank.

Now, a cork popper isn't the first choice for fly-fishing a stream trout, but it might be worth a try. But snapping a popper onto a steel leader is very unusual. Either the Shawsheen has fish in it big enough to make me think twice about wading there, or else some kid lost one of his dad's fly-rod poppers. (Call me if you can identify it.)

So, here's a few cheap lessons.

One -- if you haven't got a small enough snap swivel, then tie your lure directly onto the line. Next week I'll try to demonstrate the three favorite monofilament knots.

Two -- figure out what the fish are eating before you offer them something. Frogs in early April?

Three -- if it isn't bait, then leave the bobber in the box. That means you'll lose a few lures, but you'll also catch a bunch more fish. The risk is worth the reward.

And four -- keep reading all you can about fishing. That and practice are the only ways you'll learn.

Soccer camp

The 12th annual Andover Soccer Camp will be conducted at Phillips Academy, Andover. There will be four co-educational week programs. The camp will commence July 11 and the final session will conclude on August 5.

Players ranging in age from eight to 12 years will be accepted each of the first two weeks. Players ranging in age from 10 to 18 years will be accepted the last two sessions. All soccer activities will be held on the Phillips Academy grounds from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Camp brochures are now available and further information may be obtained by contacting the Phillips Academy athletic office at 475-3400, ext. 397.

over the weekend, and only 17 anglers were hardy enough to show up at the Concord River for the New England Bass Angling Association derby on Sunday morning. The top prize of $300 was based on 50 sign-ups, so the prizes had to be trimmed a bit.

First place went to Dave Melvin, of Billerica for a three bass take totalling 3-pounds-14-ounces. Dave took home $100 for his efforts. Second place and fifty bucks went to Tewksbury's John Madden, for a two-bass weighing in at 3-12; while third and $25 was handed to Mike Fiato of Waltham for a single bass weighing 3-pounds-4. Not bad.

Another NEBA derby is set for May 8 on Forge Pond in Littleton, and this one is a biggie. Instead of being a do-it-yourself tournament, the May 8 event will be a two-fisher team competition, with an entry fee of $100 per team. If 40 teams sign up, the top prize will be $500 per person. Fifth place is break even but one-thru-four are profitable.

And make no mistake -- Forge Pond is one the absolute best bass ponds in the Merrimack Valley. It's not uncommon to have 8-pounders taken out of Forge. Big fish, big $.

April 30 will be Italian Night at the Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club on Chandler Street, from 7 p.m. until midnight. Chow will be lasagna, ziti, antipasto, spaghetti and such, with music for dancing provided by a DJ. The cost is $10 per.

A safe boating course will be offered at TR&G starting May 5, from 7-9 p.m., on Thursday nights. Art Wickey from the Division of Law Enforcement will handle the course, which is free to the public.

Penttinen co-captain

Eric Penttinen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Penttinen of Wilmington, has been elected co-captain of St John Prep's Lacrosse team.

Eric was also co-captain of the St. John's football team and was selected to the Salem Evening News and Catholic Conference all-star teams.

The 6'4", 230 pound defenseman is a two-year starter and played on the 1987 Division II state semifinalist team.

Silver Lake, Wilmington

In case you don't own one already, here's a copy of the Silver Lake depth map, courtesy of the Division of Fisheries & Wildlife. A 1986 survey showed abundant fish in Silver Lake, but all of them were small. So, to balance things out, pike were stocked.

National Library Week

Your local library is at your service

If only a few days separated you from a solo performance of the French National Anthem and you needed lyrics in both English and French, where would you go? What if your kitchen were in desperate need of a facelift? Suppose your hamster was losing his hair and your vet was basking in Bermuda? A visit to your public library might solve your problem.

Public libraries, across Massachusetts and across the country, have changed enormously over the years. Despite the archaic public perception of libraries as dusty warehouses of books, libraries have been steadily adding information services and materials to help people answer the practical questions that arise from day to day.

A visit to your local library during National Library Week (April 17 through April 23) or anytime soon will introduce you to the amazing range of information now available.

Librarians across the state, convinced that people are missing out on vital sources of free information, have begun to aggressively promote libraries as information centers.

"Having services that no one knows about is as good as having no services at all," said Jeff Katz, chairman of the Massachusetts Library Association's PR Advisory Committee. "We've spent years developing our product - information services - and waited patiently for our customers to find us."

Not content to wait any longer, public libraries in Massachusetts have begun to publicize information services.

"Breaking the Silence," an upbeat public awareness campaign designed to shatter old stereotypes, has just been launched.

Computers, CD-ROM technology, online databases, library networks, and reference librarians armed with graduate degrees have turned today's public library into a veritable goldmine of information.

While your public library is still the place to pick up a current bestseller or browse through the local newspaper, it's also the place for answers to "I-wish-I-knew-how" or "where-I-can-find" or "who-do-I-talk-to" types of questions.

Are you looking for up-to-the-minute magazine articles on mutual funds, for instance? Many libraries now carry InfoTrac, an index to popular magazine articles on a CD-ROM disk much like a compact music disc.

Have you been wondering what organization in your community can help with a question? Many libraries in Massachusetts have put together local community information files and indexes to help patrons track down babysitters, chapters of Alcoholics Anonymous, or adoption information.

Are you on the verge of buying a refrigerator but want more information on various brands? A number of libraries have set aside special collections known as "consumer corners" or "consumer collections." These areas are stocked with magazines and books that evaluate everything from air filters to weekend camping equipment. Many collections include listing of consumer complaint addresses as well.

Do you want to get your hands on a book you know is the definitive source on building a greenhouse? If your local library does not own it, you may either request that it be purchased or a reference librarian can borrow it from another library.

In honor of National Library Week, local libraries have put together the following vital facts and profiles for you to clip and save.

Three libraries will be included this week - Reading, Wakefield and Stoneham, and we will feature Winchester, Woburn, Burlington, Wilmington, Tewksbury, North Reading and Lynnfield in the coming weeks.

Stoneham Public Library

Although the Town of Stoneham has supported a free public library since 1859, the Library established its present Main Street address with a 1903 grant from the Carnegie Corporation. In 1931 a children's library was added through funds provided by local philanthropist Annie Hamilton Brown. Over the next fifty years the Town of Stoneham doubled

FM TALK: Our far-flung correspondent has just returned from Venice Beach, Florida, where he spent Spring Break vacationing with two of his great and good buddies, Jack Sullivan, from Winchester, and Jim Powers, from Woburn. The following are excerpts from the journal they kept:

Nicknamed this reunion "The '88 Fusiliers World Tour"...well, it was the first leg of one, at least...It was the first time the three of us have gotten together in seven years...Didn't make it to Ft. Lauderdale or Boca Raton this year (our usual Spring Break destinations), and missed dining out at Bianca's on Rte. ALA, but exploring the Gulf Coast for the first time seemed adventurous...Planned to stay at Jimmy's condo near Venice Beach.

Flight down was turbulent; flew directly into storm which eventually brought bad weather to northeast...Arrived at Tampa Airport, and the weather was superb! Not a cloud in the sky, and the temperature was 78 degrees...Had trouble locating my suitcase at baggage pickup...Finally located it - mine was the one with the green bathing suit sticking out of it (must have popped open during handling)...Jack found that pretty funny.

Jimmy, who'd flown down on Good Friday, several days prior to Jack's and my arrival, met us at the airport...Picked us up in a shiny new Chrysler convertible (no better way to see Florida than from inside a convertible with the top down)...Jack and Jimmy always kid me about being a "Felix Unger" type, so when I asked Jimmy during the ride back to the condo if he had plenty of towels and face cloths on hand, they both broke out into hysterical laughter..."Any other guy would be asking about the women down here," was Jimmy's response, adding, "but not you. You want to know about

Feel good about yourself

AFTER A MASTECTOMY

Women need to be especially concerned with the weight and balance of a breast form. If not properly balanced, poor posture and discomfort can result.

It is best to see a trained fitting specialist and have professional advice when selecting a breastform and bra. There is no reason for any woman who has had a mastectomy to feel self-conscious about her appearance or not to look just as she did before her surgery.

Case Surgical Appliance offers a wide selection of forms and bras in a variety of shapes and styles from light fluff fitted to the natural weighted silicone breastform. A trained mastectomy specialist is available to discuss your fitting needs, private and confidential.

By appointment only.

We will bill Medicare for you. Medicare allows one breast form a year and two bras every six months.

Kidsplace presents puppets

The Kidsplace Playground of Wilmington presents the famous Gerwick Puppets performing "Adventures from Thornton W. Burgess." The Gerwick Puppeteers will be performing two shows at the Shriner's Auditorium on Sunday, April 24, to benefit the Kidsplace Playground.

The Gerwick Puppeteers tour throughout New England performing for children. They are affiliated with the New England Puppetry Series in Amherst and perform regularly at the Boston Children's Museum. Lenny Gerwick and Deborah Costine, creators and performers of the Gerwick Puppets, have been a team since 1974, and have given over 1,400 performances. They entertain with elaborate fantasy and lots of humor, and often respond directly to comments made by the audience. Each production includes hand painted scenery, recorded classical and contemporary music, and many puppets.

The shows will be at 1 and 2 p.m. on Sunday, April 24 at the Shriner's Auditorium (Rte. 93, take exit 39 - Concord Street). Face painting and popcorn will be available after each performance at an additional charge. Tickets can be purchased in advance for $3 per person, and $3.50 at the door. To order tickets in advance call

POEM

Thank God It's Spring Again

Have you ever walked a country road, in the springtime of the year?
And seen the pretty flowers grow that bring us all good cheer?

Have you ever walked a sandy beach and watched the waves ride high?
Perhaps a lonely gull flew up then circled in the sky.

You've seen, I'm sure a baby smile
cradled in its mother's arms.
There's nothing in the world that has,
a new born baby's charms.

These many things are nature's way to tell us one and all of the beauty that's all around us that we thought we lost last fall

Oh Lord! As we look in wonder as spring slowly unfolds,
We know God's in his heaven

Reading Rotary Annual Road Race on May 15

The Reading Rotary Club will hold its annual Road Race in Reading on Sunday, May 15 and will feature a 5 mile road race and a 1 1/2 mile fun run. The race has become one of the most popular and features one of the largest turnouts of any road race run in the greater Boston area.

For the first time Rotarian Jim Lovell will be the director of the race and as always, everything is planned to the finest detail to insure a well run and enjoyable race. A majority of the membership of the Reading club will also be on hand that day to aid and assist competitors before, during and after the race. Everything will be handled in a first class fashion.

The race will be limited and it is advised that pre-registration through the mail is the best way to guarantee a slot. BayBank Middlesex and TASC (The Analytic Sciences Corporation) will be the major sponsors of the race. Tee shirts will be presented to the first 250 who register and runner hats will be presented to the next 250 participants.

As always the race will begin at the Reading YMCA, just to the rear of Reading Memorial High School, and will wind its way through Reading's back roads before ending up back at the "Y." The race will feature such things as water stations, police traffic control, split times and medical assistance.

Improve forests

It's spring and time to remember that forests are like gardens — they need to be tended and weeded to grow and stay healthy.

The Yankee Forest Cooperative Project can help — with free how-to assistance for individuals wanting to improve the value and environmental quality of their forest land.

Individuals own most — 87 percent — of Massachusetts' 2.9 million acres of forest land. Nearly 60 percent of the entire state is forested.

Yankee Forest helps land owners set up forest management plans that may include thinning tree stands, controlling insects and diseases, protecting watershed areas, preventing erosion and fires and selling harvested timber.

For more information, call the Yankee Forest Cooperative Project toll-free: 1-800-367-3802, or write: Yankee Forest Cooperative Project, Box 760, Chelapachet, R.I. 02814.

Yankee Forest is joint effort of the states of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island with the U.S. Forest Service.

Local Libraries

in population to its present 22,000. When in December 1979 local businessman, John L. Bracciotti, advised the Board of Trustees that some 30,000 square feet of land and buildings adjacent to the Library would be for sale, plans were prepared to acquire the site for a much-needed expansion. By the time the new facility was opened in the Spring of 1984, nearly two million dollars in local funds had been expended on the development program. In addition to added seating, shelf space and circulation areas, a local history room was established as well as expanded office and work areas for the Library staff.

The Stoneham Public Library became a member of the North of Boston Library Exchange through an anonymous gift of some $40,000 donated in early 1985. Going on-line in 1987, the Library is now able to be part of a state-of-the-art computerized circulation and inventory control system.

Whether a library user needs a local document on microfilm from the 18th century or the latest novel, the Library's richness lies in its diversity. As the 21st century approaches, the Town of Stoneham is able to boast one of the most out-

The hours of operation are as follows: Adult Services: Monday to Thursday, 10 to 9; Friday, 10 to 5; Saturday, 10 to 6 and Sunday, 2 to 5. Junior Library: Monday to Thursday, 10 to 6; Friday, 10 to 5; Saturday, 10 to 6. The entire Library is closed weekends between June 15th and Labor Day.

Reading Public Library

Whether you need the lyrics to the French national anthem or a guide to hamper health, the Reading Public Library can help. With a reference staff of seven, a reference collection of more than 3,000 sources, and a computer network that provides access to more than one million books in the area, the Reading Public Library is a perfect place to find information. Pick up the phone or stop by the next time you need answers.

At the Reading Public Library you can also take your children to a storyhour, grab a novel for your father, or type a letter. You might get something notarized, photocopy personal documents, or request a new book. You could sign up to see a play, reserve the meeting room for your club, or pick up "Off the Shelf," the library newsletter. And, on your way out, grab a couple of books on tape for a trip, borrow free museum passes, and see what the monthly Coffee Hour is featuring.

You could also just sit down and read a book.

For younger Reading residents, there's no shortage of things to do. Last year, the Children's Room, under the direction of Corinne Fisher, put together more than 300 programs for kids of all ages. Nearly 1,000 children took part in the Summer Reading Club alone. This year's club, titled "The Kingdom of Readalot," promises to be another great success, unrivaled even in medieval times.

Without a doubt, the pride and joy of the children's department is the Children's Room itself. With a high ceiling, tall, sunny windows, and bright banners, the room is airy and spacious. A separate picture book/play area for preschoolers allows older children to work and read undisturbed.

The Children's Room has scheduled two special programs for National Library Week. On Tuesday, April 19 at 2 p.m., storyteller Judith Black will tell stories for elementary and middle school children. On Thursday, April 21, at 10 a.m., Brownie Troop 1289 from the Joshua Eaton School will present "Teddy Bear Storytime" for three to five year-olds. Check "Off the Shelf" for more upcoming events.

For older kids, the Young Adult area on the first floor is the place to find everything from popular paperbacks to classic works of literature to Mad magazine. This summer, the Library will launch its Second Annual Reading Raffle for kids in sixth grade and over. According to Sally MacDonald, Young Adult Librarian, raffle tickets will be handed out for each book read. Contestants reading the greatest number of books will have the best chance of cashing in on a prize.

Another area of interest on the first floor is the Local History Room, located in what used to be the principal's office of the old school. Used for historical and genealogical research, the Local History collection houses sources like old city directories, town reports, birth, marriage and death records and books on Reading history.

The Library has a number of special services targeted just for senior citizens. Certainly one of the most popular events is the monthly morning Coffee Hour, a combination of arm-chair travel, local history, and talks on practical concerns like health and legal matters.

For Reading residents who have trouble reading regular print, the Library has hundreds of novels, romances, mysteries, and more in large print. Homebound residents can receive books at home through the Library's Home Delivery Service. Contact Renee Olson at the Library for more information.

So before you head out on your quest for the refrigerator of your dreams, the best free advice on mutual funds, or the definitive plans for a treehouse, stop by the Reading Public Library. Take some time during National Library Week and stop in for a storyhour or flip through a magazine. You'll be surprised — there's more at the Reading Public Library than meets the eye.

Beebe Library

Beebe Library is located at the corner of Main and Avon streets in Wakefield Center.

Beebe Library's operating hours are: Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The library has several special or outstanding collections. The College and Career catalog, guides to secondary and post secondary education, financial aid guides and applications, study guides for CLEP, GED, civil service, post office, and many other examinations, books on resumes and job search, and much more.

The library has a fine collection of materials on guns and ammunition (for the target shooter more than the hunter) known as the "Keough Collection."

The library also has a unique

local history and genealogy collection with primary and secondary sources of local history for Wakefield and other communities.

The library offers special services to the homebound.

Local volunteers will deliver library materials to shut-ins, and later pick up and return the books to the library.

For more information on these or the many other services offered by the Beebe Library, call 246-6334.

Pet Pilot Project investigates state policy

The state law banning all pets from state-subsidized housing for the elderly is based on misconceptions, according to a study conducted by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (MSPCA).

Commissioned by the Massachusetts Legislature two years ago, the MSPCA and the Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) developed a Pet Pilot Project to investigate the blanket "no pets" policy in Massachusetts and probe the merits of allowing pets in state-subsidized housing for the elderly. Housing managers across the state volunteered to lift the pet ban temporarily and allow elderly residents to keep their pets for one year under certain conditions.

Under the pilot project, strict guidelines governing responsible pet ownership were developed and then distributed to all participating housing facilities. Pet Committees — made up of pet owners, housing managers and residents without pets — were established at each participating housing facility to enforce regulations and address concerns. Veterinarians, local humane societies and an MSPCA ombudsman also were available for counsel.

"We found that those housing officials who endorsed the blanket law forbidding pets did so under erroneous fears and misconceptions," according to MSPCA official Martha C. Armstrong, who directed the pilot project.

The project unveiled several misconceptions — even fears — that originally formed the basis of the no-pets law. Those who backed the law banning pets wrongly assumed that public housing facilities would be bombarded with animals if permission to own them were granted. In addition, pet skeptics believed that pets would be an encroachment on non-pet owners' lives and/or lifting the ban on pets would place burdensome time demands on housing managers.

Contrary to these fears, however, the study found that the elderly were fully aware of their physical and financial limitations and only a few took advantage of the temporary rule. Further, seniors were quite considerate of their non-pet owning neighbors and eager to abide by the strict guidelines set forth. In fact, tenants without pets often reported how much they enjoyed being around the pets of others.

In short, the study found that all tenants and housing managers benefitted from the project. The residents who participated in the project were able to exercise control over their own environment and enjoy the therapeutic benefit of animal companionship; and the housing officials found that the citizens themselves could orchestrate such a program with minimal guidance.

Humane societies across the nation cite "landlord refused to allow pets" as one of the leading reasons people surrender animals. The problem in Massachusetts continues to plague the elderly, according to MSPCA officials, as the number of elderly residents increases and the number of affordable housing decreases.

"Passage of H 3084 would be a major relief for our elderly citizens, whose only companion in life is often their pet," said Judy Finerty, MSPCA Ombudsman for the Pet Pilot Project.

CLOTHING DONATIONS NEEDED

It's spring clean up and clean out time again and the First Congregational Church of Stoneham would like to help you get started. A Giant Rummage Sale will be held in the church hall on Saturday, April 30, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Clothing and household items will be gratefully accepted and priced for speedy sale. All clothing must be clean, mended if necessary, and ready to wear. To aid the hard-working volunteers who will be sorting donations from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday before the April 30 Rummage Sale, boxes and bags of donated items should be marked as to their content, such as white elephant room articles, women's clothing, men's clothing, or children's items.

The First Congregational Church is located at the corners of Church and Central streets, just outside Stoneham Square. Donations may be dropped off at the Church St. entrance but not until the week beginning Monday, April 25.

Clothing not sold on April 30 will be donated to the Pine Street Inn in Boston, and so the community is offered two chances to put their unwanted articles to good use.

Volunteers who would like to help out anytime from Wednesday through Saturday are welcome. Please call Mrs. Blair at 438-3579 or call the church office at 438-0097.

BLUE GRASS IN LEXINGTON

New England-bred Ham Branch Bluegrass will stage a concert on Saturday, May 7 at First Parish Church on the Green in Lexington. The band, which offers contemporary songs as well as traditional material, will perform at 7:30 p.m. The show will be preceded by a down-home ham dinner at 6 p.m. and a daytime Mayfair.

Tickets for the concert are priced at $4 children, $7 adults. Dinner tickets are $3 children, $5 adults. A combination dinner/concert ticket is $10, with a family concert price for four members set at $25.

For tickets or information, contact Mary Green at (617) 863-8984.

INTERIOR DESIGN BECKONS

Do you have a strong sense of color? An eye for balance and detail? An ability to visualize in three dimension? Are you always moving furniture and accessories in your home? When shopping do you think of ways to refurbish and recreate the things you see? If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, then the Interior Design field needs you.

Newbury College offers adult students the opportunity to earn an Associate Degree in just two years by attending classes two nights per week. The conveniently located Wakefield Campus offers classes on Monday and Wednesday evenings at the Wakefield Junior High School.

A tuition plan is available for students eligible for company reimbursement and the program is approved by the Veteran's Administration. The College offers assistance with financial aid and the Career Planning and Placement Office is available to all degree students and alumni.

WOMEN OVER 40

Outdoor Vacations for Women Over 40 has scheduled two day trips in May: in Dunstable on May 7, orienteering, learning and practicing the basics of reading and using a topograph-

QUILT MUSEUM

Five famous quiltmakers of New England will be guest lecturers at the New England Quilt Museum in Lowell, for spring Sunday lecture series. Two will give Saturday workshops for hands-on experience in design and applique.

Mary Golden of New Hampton, N.H., will talk about her now famous kaleidoscope quilts on April 24.

Nancy Halpern of Natick, on May 15 will have a new lecture, "The Art of the Quilt." She is the maker of "Archipelago," a quilt in the museum's permanent collection.

On May 22 Barbara Barber will talk about New England influences on her quilts.

All the lectures will be at 2 p.m. on Sundays.

Ruth B. McDowell of Winchester, will have a workshop Saturday, May 14 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on developing an asymmetrical quilt block by using the various symmetries of a plane. She is the maker of "The Dancing Princesses" and "Water Lilies," a quilt in the museum's permanent collection.

Susan K. Turbak's workshop on landscape applique will be Saturday, May 21, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Participants will work on a scene based on a photograph or art image of their choice.

Information on tickets for all these events is available from the office of the New England Quilt Museum, 256 Market Street, Lowell, Mass. 01852, or by calling (617) 452-4207. Admission to the lectures is $5 and to the workshops $30.

The world is not round. It's flattened at the poles and bulging in the middle, a shape known as an oblate spheroid.

The Stone Zoo needs weekend volunteers

The Stone Zoo in Stoneham is looking for weekend volunteer Zoo interpreters to help bring exciting and in-depth information to the public. Every animal at Stone Zoo has a story to tell - and they each need someone to tell it. Zoo interpreters teach visitors of all ages about the important role of zoos in conservation and wildlife preservation.

The world's wildlife need you to speak on their behalf. You can help by becoming a Stone Zoo volunteer educator. Interpreters assist thousands of visitors each year to gain a greater understanding of the part we all play in protecting the environment by teaching about the animals at Stone Zoo.

Training prepares you to communicate the world of animals to zoo visitors. You will learn about animal behavior, adaptations, diets, habitats, and how to use artifacts to convey your message. It's free. You only pay with interest, enthusiasm, and time - a rare opportunity.

Informative training workshops will be held at Stone Zoo on April 30 and May 7 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. for accepted applicants.

If you love animals, enjoy working with people, are over 18 years old, and have four hours a month that could be more rewarding, you can be part of this exciting program.

For more information about becoming a weekend volunteer Zoo interpreter call the Education Department at 438-5100. It's a great feeling to know that you can make a difference.

Roving From S-1

taking a shower! "Rode in the front seat, while Jack rode in the back seat. Got even watching Jack try to keep his hair in place as the wind whipped through it.

Lots of billboards along Rte. 275, one of the main Highways connecting Tampa with St. Pete, Sarasota, Venice and Ft. Myers. Many, many of them advertising funeral specials. One in particular stood out in my mind: advertised a $499 cremation special. No industry down there; mostly condo developments, banks, funeral parlors, shopping centers and restaurants. If I wasn't sure that I was in Florida at that point, was certain by the time I arrived at Jimmy's condo: the first thing you notice is all the tiny lizard-like creatures crawling up the sides of buildings down there (harmless of course).

Drove to Nokomis Beach, in Nokomis, which is between Venice and Sarasota, and realized just how lazy life is down there: Jimmy pulled up behind a parked car, thinking it was waiting to pull out onto the highway. The car never moved, and it took us about thirty seconds to realize the car was parked and not going any place. First night out on the town Jack wore a sports jacket with our return flight tickets sticking out of the inside pocket. I said to him, "Hack, you should take those airline tickets out of your suit jacket pocket. We look like tourists." Best part of that first night was going back to the condo during the early morning hours, and the three of us sitting in the kitchen, chatting about old times, and chowing down on Cheese-Its and crunch peanutbutter. It's amazing the things you'll eat and say after a few beers.

That first night we ate at a place called "Crow's Nest," which is on the waterfront in Venice. Had to wait nearly two hours for a table. By the time we ate we weren't sure of what we were eating, if you know what I mean. Noticed that there weren't many bars or night clubs in Venice, but there were plenty of beautiful women (seemed like all of them were tall, long-legged, blonde, blue-eyed and suntanned). Not everybody down there is over fifty-five, as some people would have you believe. The Gulf Coast is the best kept secret in Florida at the moment.

Jack and Jimmy seemed to order fish, especially shell fish, every place we dined. They kept kidding me, because I am allergic to iodine in shell fish. At one point, Jack almost had me convinced that I should try eating some oysters on the half shell anyway, just to see if I'm still allergic to them, but I held my ground. Noticed many folks down there speaking with English or Australian accents. Many of the restaurants down there are either owned or staffed by Englishmen or Australians, I was told.

Second night there ate at a restaurant called "Magic Moment," which is located on Siesta Key, in Sarasota. Owned and staffed by Englishmen (and women!), and learned there is a Magic Moment in London, also. Had to wait for a table there, too, but in the meantime, we sat in the lounge and listened to a terrific singer/piano player by the name of Wes Baldwin. Jack requested "Volare," which was graciously played and sung. When he finished Jack got up to tip him, and accidentally dropped a fifty dollar bill into the spittoon instead of a five. Jack said to Wes, "Got forty-five dollars change?" That broke everybody up.

We had the best deep-fried mushroom caps we've ever tasted in our lives at the Magic Moment (which, incidentally, featured roving magicians to entertain you during dinner). Also had great service from our wait staff, Dave and Kathy. Jack, somebody should teach you that the bread dish isn't for trash and dirty silverware. Kept forgetting a pen to write down my thoughts, so had to borrow one constantly. Thanks to Dave and Kathy, who kept loaning me the use of their pens. Kept hearing, "A newspaper columnist without a pen?"

After dinner, went upstairs to a place called "Blueberry Hill," which, as you might suspect, was a fifties/sixties nightclub. Served beers in old-fashioned Ball mason jars, just like the ones my parents used to take along to the drive-in movie theatre when I was a kid (I used them to do my "duty" in, so to speak, because my parents had other things on their minds besides walking me back to the bathroom every five minutes!). Met a young woman there by the name of Joanne, a teacher from Chicago who was on vacation, also. She was also kind enough to loan me a pen a few times. The Men's room door had the word "Cats" printed on it ("Cats" is one of my favorite sayings, as my friends will attest to).

Spent the daytime hours at Venice Beach and checking out real estate buys. Noticed the beach was packed with people of all ages, 12 to 82 years old. And the funny thing was, everybody seemed to exhibit equal amounts of high energy, including the old folks! Third day there met two absolutely gorgeous young ladies by the names of Marti Wagley and Heidi Buonpane, who work as hairstylists in Venice (Marti owns the shop in which Heidi works). If you're ever in Venice, stop by Abra Cadabra Hair Studio, on Rte. 41, and say hello from us.

Had the best time with those two girls: started with drinks at the Mardi Gras, a popular bar in Venice, then had dinner at a super restaurant called Southbay Cafe (just about everybody dined on super grouper but me!), then danced till the end of the evening at a place called Coasters. Will never forget dancing with Heidi to a James Taylor song (can't remember name of it, though), and sharing some lovely moments with her on the deck at the rear of the bar, which overlooked the intracoastal. The night could not have been more perfect, nor could the company. Look forward to Heidi coming to Boston to visit (she's never been here, nor, for that matter, to any major metropolitan city, so she's got something special to look forward to).

Thought that kept crossing my mind as we drove along Rte. 41, the main connector between Venice and Sarasota: Massachusetts appears to be the only state in the continental USA that has so much trash along the sides of its highways. Didn't see so much as an empty Coke can on the side of a Florida highway. And they don't have a five cent deposit on bottles and cans, either, which is the biggest irony of all. Massachusetts has the deposit law, and we still have trash along our highways!

Loved the area, but one thing drove me crazy: most of the houses down there are too close together. Last night there ate at a great place called Pirates Cove (also owned and staffed by English folks). You have to know Jack; he breaks out into laughter at the stupidest things. For example, when the waitress (who had the cutest English accent, by the way) asked me if I wanted deep fried potatoes or baked, I asked, "How are the baked done?" She replied, "Double baked, sir, with cheese and bacon topping." I asked, "Can I get cheese only?" She replied, "Of course, sir." At which point Jack cracked up. "You're so darn fussy," he said. Like wanting to know if the condo had towels and face cloths.

After dinner, spent the rest of the evening on St. Armand's Circle, in downtown Sarasota. Reminded us of Quincy Market, only in a circle. Many fine clothing stores and restaurants and bars. Most popular nightclub in Sarasota is supposed to be a place called Ruby Tuesday's, which is in the heart of St. Armand's Circle. We opted to drive a little ways down the road to a place called The Sawmill. Hottest — and I do mean hottest — bar we encountered in Sarasota. All those beautiful suntanned blondes we met on the beach ended up there in the evening.

Missed our flight home by two minutes (Jimmy kept fiddling around with the handkerchief in his breast pocket of his suit jacket, and we couldn't decide how to best load the luggage in the car, all of which spelled major delays). Lucked out, though, because we managed to book a flight to Providence, which was leaving only an hour and twenty minutes after our original flight. Jack had to call his wife, who would have to pick us up at the Providence Airport. Jack to his wife on the phone: "Got good news, honey, and I've got bad news. The good news is we're going to arrive on time. The bad news is we're going to arrive in Providence." Glad it wasn't my wife on the other end (that is, if I had a wife).

On the flight back, wore the same shirt I'd worn the night I'd first met Heidi, and all I could smell was her perfume. Kept reminding me of the Richard Marx song, "Endless Summer Nights."

The hermit crab's home is an empty sea snail shell. When the crab grows too big for the shell, it hunts for a larger one.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Going to school many years ago, Joe Aldo of Winchester and I took a shortcut through a field. We climbed over a fence where I ripped the seat of my pants. Joey went on ahead, and I, dragging my feet, reluctantly walked into the classroom late. Miss Sullivan looked up at the clock and said (to my embarrassment), "I see you're a little behind this morning." "You wouldn't have, Miss Sullivan, if Joey had a safety pin!" I exclaimed.

Uncle John Shea (who is over 80 and still driving a car) told Al Kapamagian, a great automobile mechanic, that whenever he drives over 70 miles an hour, his car's engine gives off a weird knocking sound. Al Kapamagian, one of the best mechanics in the area, gave the car a road test and said, "I can't find anything wrong. The knock you hear may be the Angel Gabriel warning you to slow down."

"I stole a rope," said a penitent Mike Gaffney. "Well, that's not too bad," replied Father Quinn, "but by the way, what was on the end of the rope?" "A cow."

You know, folks, "education" will never become as expensive as "ignorance." Some people are too big for their britches, both literally and figuratively. Queen Victoria of England said to Prime Minister Gladstone, "You forget who I am — I am Queen Victoria of England!"

My little nephew Mark O'Donnell of Lynnfield was saying his prayers before going to bed. His mother Maureen called out, "Mark, I can't hear you." "Gee, Ma, I wasn't talking to you," Mark replied.

I saw my friend John "Ed" Fogelberg's picture in the Middlesex East Supplement, and I must say he looks great. Ed is the Town of Burlington's historian. Wayne Higden had Ed as a teacher and said he was one of the best. In his weekly column in the Burlington edition of the Woburn Chronicle, Ed referred to Woodchips as a column of "Chuckles and Groans." I consider that a compliment coming from a literary giant. Thanks, Ed.

It's about time that I thank publicly Mr. William Pacino, who encouraged me when I first submitted poems to him about five years ago. The poems were the forerunners of Woodchips.

I was thinking of applying for a job at Carpet World in Wilmington. My cousin Dave O'Donnell said to me, "Don't bother, they'll never hire you. You are," he continued, "colorful and durable, but you are not rugged enough — if you want a part-time job, why don't you get a hurdy gurdy and go down to Faneuil Hall Market place — I know you'll do well." "Dave," I said, "if I can't get a monkey as a helper, will you come along?"

Woodchips wishes Wolfgang von Maack, who recently retired as Administrator of the New England Memorial Hospital, "good luck, long life, and a happy retirement." The awesome responsibilities of a hospital administration are equal to and sometimes more rigorous than those of a mayor of a city. The position is like dancing with a pretty girl on a dance hall floor. No matter how one slides, glides, twists or turns, he or she is bound to rub someone the wrong way. There will probably be a wedding soon at NEMH. A handsome intern said to a nurse, "Marry me, you're too beautiful for ward-s!"

Whoever coined the phrase that bankers are cold, stoic sourpusses is all wet. Most of them are, in fact, warm, smiling, congenial people. Some I congratulate for their recent promotions, like Robert Salzer, Vice President (Operations), Christine Carter, Asst. Vice President, and Margaret Seward (Mortgage Officer), all of the Northern Bank & Trust Company. Also Janet Mugford, Nancy DeMarco, and Kelly Matterna, all of the Boston Five.

I met my wife Kathy in a bank years ago. She was wearing a mini-skirt, and she certainly drew a lot of "interest." I remember a man shouting in the bank, "Did anyone lose a wallet with a rubber band around it?" Three men came forward and said that they did. "Good," replied the finder, "here's your rubber band."

In today's changing world, Woodchips salutes every member of the police force as they stand alongside of every member of the fire department. They have my sincere respect and admiration for an extremely difficult and dangerous job well done. The following have been recently promoted: Captain to Dep. Superintendent, William E. Kelley of Woburn;

Lt. Al Avola, Woburn; Sgt. Albert F. Pierce Jr. of Burlington; Sgt. Jerome Gately and Sgt. Joseph Hanley, both of Woburn; Lt. Robert Giguere and Officer Larry Doane, Revere Beach MDC, and the following beautiful MDC Officers (of course they're women) — Julie Wahlefield, Susan Simon, Rosemary Chaison, Colette Boucher and Kathleen Cuoco, all assigned to the Revere Beach MDC Police Station under command of a dedicated leader, Captain John Greulich.

My cousin Angelo Quaganti is a retired police officer who works part-time in a bakery making "Cop-Cakes."

They are called flight attendants, but I still like to call them stewardesses. These women are really beautiful and charismatic, so I wrote a poem about them called "A Stewardess' Smile." It was published in this Supplement, The Air Travelers Journal and other papers. Part of the poem has these lines, "I've traveled East, I've traveled West, But in the air I've seen the best, of the world's beautiful sights to see. It's a stewardess' smile, heavenly to me." An organization of former flight attendants is called The Kiwi Club, named after a flightless New Zealand bird. Some local members are Barbara Juskalian of Medford, Constance C. Vivolo of Stoneham, and Nancy Maris and Brenda Haley of Medford. The Kiwi's 18th national convention will be held April 28, 29 and 30 at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston.

My Aunt Nora from Wilmington waited so long for a flight to Chicago that she told a travel agent, "I could get on a broom and get to Chicago quicker!" "Ma'am," replied the gentleman, "go right ahead, Runway 34 is clear for takeoff!"

I remember hanging around Muller's field watching the Piper Cubs and Beachcraft planes take off and land. A woman pilot asked me, "Do you wanna fly?" "I sure do." "Here," she said, there's a whole jar full — pick any one you want."

Some business establishments have interesting signs, like the watch repair shop, "If your clock doesn't tick, tock to us." Lumber mill, "Come in and see what we saw," and a glass shop, "In this business, it's one pane after another," except if the glass shop is Classic Glass of Woburn, because of the beautiful secretaries Julie Thiffault and Naddy Gueerin. The genial owners are William and Roberta Brodie.

No one is a failure who is enjoying life. Woodchips Personality Winners: Philip Gebo, George and Mary Poole, Emily Frahar, Angie Queeno, Elaine Haggerty and Martha Burns, all of Woburn, Ann Turner, Vinny and Ruth Harrington, Dick Midwood, Tracey Heenan, Carol Rindone, all of Reading, Jimmy Geary, Karol McLaughlin, Janice Festa, Marilyn Bianchi, Russ Rebidue and Mary (Greeley) Amato, all of Lynnfield, Theresa Martin, Frank Tuttle, Ed Sargent and Fred Neilson, and Corporal Dean Bennett, Mass. State Police, all of Wilmington. Mr.

Green, a realtor with the sweetest brogue I ever heard, said to my father, "Giovanni, I'm going to show you a house that's without a flaw! Scusa," my father replied, "what the heck are we going to walk on?"

Get a headstart in your garden

April is the month to:

—Avoid working the soil if it is too wet. There is a simple test for soil readiness: if a handful of soil remains in a moist ball after it is squeezed, the soil is still too wet to work; if it crumbles apart, it's ready. Working wet soil will cause it to compact and can ruin the soil structure.

—Sow tomato, marigold, zinnia and aster seeds indoors.

—Plan to set out rhubarb crowns along the side of the garden in an out-of-the-way place where they will receive full sun. Two or three plants are usually adequate for the average family.

—Remove mulch from strawberry plants when there is no longer any danger of temperatures dipping into the 20s. As soon as leaf growth is seen and yellowing of the foliage is noted, remove mulch leaving one-half to one-third of the mulch around plants to help conserve moisture as well as to keep the berries clean and off the ground.

—Check for brown, 1- to 2-inch pineapple shaped structures along the stems of your spruce trees indicating evidence of the spruce gall aphid. To prevent spruce gall aphids from attacking the new buds of your spruce tree and doing damage again this year, plan to apply the proper insecticide during the last part of April. Ask for a fact sheet on this pest from the UMass Cooperative Extension office in your county.

—Put down a pre-emergence crabgrass control later this month. Application of an herbicide before the seeds start to germinate is the most effective and least tedious method of controlling crabgrass. The seeds begin to germinate when the soil temperature rises above 50 degrees F.

GROUCHO LOOK-ALIKE CONTEST

Dig up that old tuxedo, grab a cigar and come to Bloomingdale's in Chestnut Hill on Saturday, April 23 at 2 p.m. for a fun-filled "Hooray For Hollywood!" salute!

All participants in the Groucho Look-Alike Contest will receive a free ticket to the Huntington Theatre Company's production of Animal Crackers, the Marx Brothers musical comedy which launched their Hollywood careers, and two free tickets to Catch A Rising Star. Prizes will be awarded to "The Best Groucho Look-Alike" and "The Best Groucho Impression," and much more!

The Huntington's own Groucho, actor Frank Ferrante who will play the zany character in Animal Crackers, will host the contest, and provide a few tips on how to look and act like Groucho! Animal Crackers will run at the Huntington May 21 - June 25. Don't miss it! For more information, call 353-3320.

EXCURSION TRAINS GOING PLACES

The Mystic Valley Railway Society, P.O. Box 486, Hyde Park, Mass. 02136, has organized three excursion train trips in the next couple of months. Each is distinctive and worthy of getting on board.

On Saturday, April 30, a Victorian Sojourn will take place with a train running from Boston to the Mt. Wachusett area in Central Massachusetts. Of note on this trip is a tour of the Heritage State Park in Gardner as well as dinner in the Victorian splendor of the restored Hotel Barre. There will also be a shopping opportunity at the R. Smith Furniture Outlet.

Trains will leave North Station on April 30 at 8:50 a.m. with stops in Porter Square, Waltham, Concord, South Acton, and Fitchburg, returning that evening. Fares are $34 for adults, $17 for children under 12.

On Sunday, May 15, a trip to the White Mountains and Plymouth in the Pemigewasset River Valley has been scheduled. Luxury motor coach will connect riders to the rail depot at Laconia, N.H., where train travel along the Boston, Concord and Montreal Railroad will proceed to Plymouth.

On June 3-5, the Mystic Valley Railway Society has scheduled a train trip via Amtrak and steam trains on the Blue Mountain & Reading and Strasburg Railroads in Pennsylvania. Two nights accommodations have been booked in Philadelphia and Lancaster, Pa.

For further information, write the Society at the address above or call 361-4445.

"The Dream of Gerontius" to be at Merrimack

One of the great religious musical works will be performed in the fourth and final program in this year's Merrimack College Concert Series.

Sir Edward Elgar's "The Dream of Gerontius," based on the poem by Cardinal Newman, will be performed on Saturday, May 7 at 8 p.m. in the Collegiate Church of Christ the Teacher on Merrimack's North Andover campus.

The oratorio will be performed by the Concord Chorus and the Masters Singers of Worcester, accompanied by the Indian Hill Orchestra, under the direction of F. John Adams. Soloists will be Mary Westbrook-Geha, mezzo-soprano, William Cotten, tenor, and Robert Honeysucker, baritone.

"The Dream of Gerontius" is acknowledged by critics and scholars as one of the great modern religious poems. The poem tells the story of an ordinary man (Gerontius) on the point of death and facing the final judgment. The dramatic piece was written by John Henry Newman in 1866 after recovering from a life-threatening illness. Once restored to health, Newman was moved to dramatize graphically the sensations and reflections of that experience.

The poem was set to music by Sir Edward Elgar between 1899-1900 and is considered by musicologists to be the most significant oratorio by an English composer.

DIABETES AND THE EYE

FREE SCREENING FOR DIABETICS

Diabetes is a disease of the body's use and control of blood sugar. Too much sugar in the blood causes one to get very thirsty and pass water very frequently. Advanced diabetes can damage nerves, blood vessels, kidneys and eyes. Diabetes can damage the eye causing blurry vision; cataract; glaucoma and destruction of the delicate blood vessels that feed the film of the eye called the retina. When the blood vessels of the retina begin to leak, they make the visual picture from the retina blur. This is called edema, if it affects the central vision of the eye it is called macular edema. If the sick blood vessels begin to bleed and die, poorly formed new blood vessels try to grow in to compensate. This is called proliferative diabetic retinopathy. People who have had diabetes for fifteen years or more have a 60% chance of having some form of blood vessel damage in their eye. Less than 10% of them will have serious complications of "sugar" in their eye. Only a small percentage of these will ever go blind from diabetic retinopathy. However, diabetes remains the leading cause of new blindness among adults in the United States.

Early recognition of diabetic eye disease may allow successful treatment using lasers. Lasers are special beams of light that can spot weld or cut like bloodless scalpels. They can be used to dry the fluid leaking from blood vessels causing edema of the fine vision center. Lasers can also be used to prevent or reduce the bleeding and retinal scarring that can cause loss of sight. Diabetes can affect all of us. But early detection and early treatment can prevent our living in a world of darkness.

Police special operations unit

"The finest of the finest"

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

The woman stands firm, two children in hand, ready to go for a loaded rifle. The special operations team is stopped in its tracks. How do the officers react?

The man is at his son's fourth birthday party. He's just about to lead all the children in "Simon Says." His beeper goes off. What does he do?

The above scenarios represent only part of the intensive training and testing undergone by the members of the Special Operations Unit of the Northeastern Massachusetts Law Enforcement Council's Tactical Police Force. Of the 1,100 officers in the 22 cities and towns which compose NEMLEC, only 80 make it to the TPF. Of those 80, 20 belong to the SOU.

Those 20 are the finest of the finest — from Burlington, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Tewksbury, Wilmington, Winchester, Woburn, and several other towns between 128 and 495. There's nothing like the unit anywhere in the area — except for Boston's SWAT team. "Our people are the most highly trained, most physically fit and best equipped of any unit, probably in the country," says Lieutenant Robert Silva of the Reading Police Department and commander of the TPF.

"There's no minimum age and no maximum age. We're just looking for the best person for the job," he continues. "We have people in their 40's who are still in very good physical condition and with a very good attitude. The average age is 33 but you can be a 25-year-old officer with a year's experience — if you're well trained." No woman has applied to the unit — yet.

In addition to the 20-man SOU, there is a six-man counter-sniper team and five-man hostage negotiations team. The TPF trains five hours a month, the SOU eight more.

Fit and equipped, the men of the SOU are ready for the high-risk situations which lately have been coming up about once a month — hostage dramas, sniping incidents, and drug raids. "We've been out to a number of hostage situations and two murders," says Silva. "We've been involved with desperate, despondent people attempting to use weapons on themselves or anybody who comes in the door."

"Not all of these turn out to be situations the average police officer couldn't handle," he continues. "But at the beginning — until we make an entry into the house — we don't know what's going on."

Drug-related incidents account for most special operations activity. "We have found a tremendous increase in the volume of drugs — right now, there are probably more drugs available in larger quantities than ever before," says Silva. "We're also finding that the drug houses are fortifying themselves."

"They're not only barricading doors which they've always done to discourage raids and to slow the police down as they enter the buildings," he continues. "Now, they're arming themselves to the teeth because they're being raided not just by police but by the competition — which is stealing their drugs and their money."

When members of the SOU walk in the door, they walk in screaming and yelling "police, police, police." "We don't want to be taken for the competition," says Silva, "because they will shoot the competition. Some of them will shoot at us when we go in — but others won't."

"But for the most part we don't have that problem," he continues, "because we depend on secrecy and surprise to stop any resistance. We use 'flash bang' grenades — low lethal grenades with a loud bang that temporarily deafens and a flash that temporarily blinds."

The unit has used just such sophisticated equipment in Lowell: two armed guards outside a house, one with a 45, one with a sawed-off shotgun. "One door was barricaded," says Silva. "Fortunately, because of all the intelligence we received, we chose the other door — the one being used frequently. We made a forcible entry, and there were six people inside — plus drugs and weapons."

Not only are drugs on the increase, drug dealers are getting much bolder, according to Silva. "They're doing it more openly and they're willing to take the risk," he says. "They're arming themselves, which is a big concern for police departments who still do a lot of their own raids. Officers have to be aware that every time they take a door down or make a forcible entry, someone might be waiting to use a weapon on them. Our unit is in place to handle known high-risk situations."

"There's a lot of activity out there now," he continues. "These 22 cities and towns don't just have a tactical unit. There's also a drug unit that uses officers from community to community to assist each other in investigations."

The men work off a beeper system. Each officer has a page and is able to respond to any call within the 22 cities within 35 minutes. "That's a very fast response when you consider they're traveling a great distance and can be found any place — at home, at work, in court, on vacation," says Silva. "And they will respond if they're required to. We have very good attendance, high physical conditioning, very strict training sessions, and no fooling around. These people are the cream of the crop."

The cream of the crop have to meet strict physical and attitudinal criteria. This month, the five new people who have applied for the one vacancy in the unit will undergo the rigors of a very demanding obstacle course at Fort Devens — twice, the second time in full gear. "They run a mile and a half in combat boots and whatever they'd need in a real life situation," says Silva. "They have to do push-ups, sit-ups and squat-thrusts — a certain number within a certain time — which only the better conditioned can do."

That's only the beginning. "Then we get to the real fun part of the day," he continues.

"We go to Sudbury where there's a confidence course that separates the boys from the men. I've been through it three times now. Not only do you have to be physically fit, you have to have a tremendous amount of confidence in yourself because it demands a lot of high climbing and upper body strength — you're left dangling many times, 50 or 60 feet in the air."

"You have to maneuver yourself over 22 different obstacles and you have no help from anybody but yourself," he says. "You're in competition with everybody else. Many of our men have been through the military and know how these obstacles have to be maneuvered. We get a good idea as to who is physically fit and who has a lot of confidence in his own physical abilities."

From there, they move to a stress firing course which involves a lot of physical exercise done very quickly. "Once they get their hearts pumping and are out of breath, we make them run, half a mile without a gas mask in full gear, bullet proof vest, everything," says Silva. "Carrying all that equipment with a long rifle is very, very difficult. For the second half mile, they put a gas mask on. That's without stopping. Running with a gas mask on is like running with somebody's hand over your mouth. You can't breathe, and you have to know how to operate it because that's what you're going to have to do someday."

That completed, the firearms training course awaits: a long rifle, a handgun, a mandatory score to attain — twice. "Then we get into the more human side, the interview process and personalities," he says. "We see how a person thinks and reacts to certain scenarios. We don't want people out there whose prime objective is to shoot somebody. We want someone out there to use his professional training to resolve a situation peacefully."

Those in charge decide who is best for the unit, but all who qualify are kept in mind and on reserve. The 35-minute interview consists of scenarios and information on what is expected. Background checks and psychological testing have already been conducted in the individual departments.

The men have to be prepared to leave their families at a moment's notice and once in a high-risk situation, must be able to control emotions and obey orders. "We'll draw up a scenario where during a drug raid, an individual will step from a closet unexpectedly — with something in his hand. How do you respond? What happens if there's a child present? How do you control your emotions when you're being screamed at?" says Silva.

"Some people get very excited and have the feeling they should shoot right away — those are the people we don't want," he adds. "We have to find people able to control their emotions over a long period of time. We get involved in situations that require an individual to lie on the ground in the worst weather conditions for maybe three or four hours. He has to be able to control his emotions and respond at a moment's notice to any situation, such as maybe assaulting a house or taking a suspect down."

"We want to know if that individual is capable not only physically but emotionally," he says. "Being able to take orders is extremely important. It's okay for suggestions or recommendations at the right time but when a person is given an order, if it's a legal order, he must obey it — even if the order later on turns out to be a wrong one. Our men are professionals — they have respect and good discipline.

"the finest" from S-9

"Someday, we're going to do something wrong or the circumstances are going to be such that maybe it was unavoidable but it turns out badly," he says. "We know that, and that's why we try to build up as much good will as we can and hope people will support us when something doesn't go just right. You can train all you want but it's like a dress rehearsal. The real thing is when the bottles come flying and the Molotov cocktails come out."

Each town pays $400 annually to belong to NEMLEC, and the SOU depends heavily on donations. A $55,000 grant received from the state a little over two years ago was used for both the TPF and SOU. That grant has been exhausted.

Whether they're sitting behind desks or risking their lives, the salary is the same. Not only are the special operations men not paid extra for their work, they have to raise their own funds to keep the unit going. They raise these funds by writing letters and giving talks — to business clubs such as Rotary, to businesses such as banks. "The Arlington Trust Bank in Lawrence has given us $2,000 for the last three years, the Bay Bank Middlesex has given us $1,000 for the last two years. The MassBank for Savings is considering a donation," says Silva.

"That's where we get our money, how we bought all this state-of-the-art equipment, and how we exist," he continues. "It cost $17,000 just for all our bullet-proof vests, $7,000 for communication gear and $3,000 for fire-retardant suits."

Their two trucks, one of which has developed serious mechanical problems, were donated by the Town of Reading and a towing agency in Lawrence. Donations have also come in the form of a cellular phone, and a 22-channel reprogrammable radio from Tact 2 Communications in North Reading. "These people have been excellent — we couldn't ask for any more support. We ran a TPF dance last month and made $500," says Silva. "The chiefs came up with $6,000 for 20 pagers, and that's an expense they took out of their radio account.

"The chiefs really have to be given a lot of credit," he continues. "They have made a commitment in overtime, equipment and resources. They realize these officers bring their training back to their own departments to share with their brother officers."

"Things are working out very well. We're really happy. What makes me feel good is that I'm the type who will work as hard as I can for something I think people will respond to, and the men respond in kind — they're willing to work, too," he says. "If I go to them at any time and say 'this is what I need' or 'this is what I want you to do,' there's no hemming and hawing — it gets done and they're willing to do whatever they can."

"Community support also helps the unit and that's all we're really looking for. We feel very comfortable with where we are today," he adds. "We have a good unit and high morale. The men are fun to be with because they want to be here."

On Wednesday, May 4 from 10 a.m. until noon, the NEMLEC TPF and SOU will do their thing at Camp Curtis Guild in Reading. The public is invited to observe their formal demonstration for the chiefs of police "dealing with real situations in an abbreviated way" using counter-snipers, canines and ballistic shields.

"It's the way we tell the chiefs what we've been doing all year long and what they're getting for their money," says Silva. "We try to show them that we are prepared, and ready to go out on any situation at any time."

Getting a new job?

By David Bacharach and Richard Balmer

Looking for a job can be a difficult and frustrating experience. There are many things to consider — what type of company to work for, where to work, the size of the company and what type of job within a company is right for you. But once you've made these basic career decisions, where do you begin?

To begin a successful job search, three materials are needed: a quality resume that truly represents abilities; a cover letter to entice a potential employer to schedule an interview; and an accurate

The key to making the process easier is using the resources available to you. Listed below are resources to help prepare the three vital materials for any job search.

THE RESUME AND COVER LETTER — Many universities offer resume and cover letter writing workshops through career placement offices or similar seminars through alumni offices. Other resources for developing these materials include professional career counselors (check the Yellow Pages) and seminars offered by professional societies (check newspaper calendar listings).

Often these services also offer other aspects of career development such as interview technique training or networking workshops. Developing your cover letter, resume and job seeking skills with the assistance of professionals can yield high-quality materials and skills that will serve you well throughout your job search.

THE MAILING LIST — Developing a list of companies that meet one's criteria and career goals is often a major snag in career search efforts. A widely accepted, but very time consuming method is to develop lists through such means as reference books from the library, a school's alumni directory or professional society mailing lists. These "mass mailings" often result in wasted time and effort since information is often out of date, and resumes do not reach the right person.

Fortunately there is now an easier and more effective way to develop mailing lists. A new service, Career Search (TM), helps job seekers create a tailor-made list of potential employers. The system allows the user to access information on more than 50,000 employers by specifying parameters such as industry, geographic location, professional specialty and company size.

Once these parameters are selected, the system generates a list of the companies meeting the job hunter's criteria and includes a contact person, address, phone number and a brief description of the company.

To make things even easier, Career Search can also print individualized cover letters and envelopes using the specified list. This system is currently available by individual appointment at the Career Search office, 520 Commonwealth Avenue, Suite 218 in Kenmore Square, (617) 247-3100. Also in this location are desk-top publishing and resume services, making it convenient for job seekers to do one-stop-shopping — getting a resume produced, creating mailing lists and generating cover letters all in one place.

A resume, cover letter, and mailing list — taking the time to develop these important tools will help ensure a successful job hunt both in terms of finding a job quickly and finding the right job for you.

(David Bacharach and Richard Balmer, personnel consultants and executive search professionals, are the co-founders of Career Finders, Inc., a Massachusetts-based career service company and developers of the Career Search program.)

Screens aren't just for windows. Fiber glass and aluminum screening in solar and conventional weaves offer inexpensive indoor and outdoor privacy, shade for people and plants, comfortable outdoor living and concealment of unsightly areas.

You can use solar screening to shade seedlings, new grass and cool-weather vegetables. With simple framing, panels of solar screening add privacy to your patio or barbecue. Stapled to an easy-to-build box frame, the attractive deep-colored fiber glass or aluminum fabric can hide garbage cans, compost piles or utility areas from view.

A screen-enclosed deck, porch or patio extends your living space outdoors at minimum cost. You'll have an outdoor living room that's light and airy by day, and lets in pleasant evening breezes without moths and mosquitoes.

A new booklet, free on request, illustrates a baker's dozen different ways that you can use screening around your home to achieve privacy, extra living space and insect-free outdoor living at low cost. For the most part, these are projects that can be completed without particular skill. To get your copy of "Screens Aren't Just for Windows," send a postcard to the Insect Screening Weavers Association, P.O. Box 8727, Harrisburg, Pa. 17105.

— It's school vacation — do you know where your children are? Well, if you're from Wakefield, it's very possible that they're in school. Greenwood School principal Nat Finklestein developed a school vacation camp program last spring to provide students with a safe, structured entertaining alternative to staying at home — and the program is still going strong.

It runs from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and is open to all Wakefield students in grades K through six — for $60. The camp is the result of cooperation on the parts of its staff, the school custodians and the PTO.

Although field trips are scheduled for each camp day, there is time also for activities such as arts and crafts; kick-ball, soccer, floor hockey, jump rope, basketball, wiffleball and relay races; VCR theater with movies, cartoons and popcorn; and quiet time during which board games, books, records and computer activities are available.

Is there a need for such a program? In Wakefield, the response has been overwhelming — from students and parents. In fact, every camp session offered has been booked to capacity almost as soon as registration was announced.

The pilot program begun last year as a cooperative effort between Burlington's Council on Aging and the school department has gone so well that it has been entered in the Burlington High course catalog for next year. Students will be given graduation credits for their work which consists of home visits, research, classwork, and a theme.

Thanks to a grant of $4,000 from the state, the COA was able to develop the program which this year involves 17 high school students and 17 homebound senior citizens.

"It was new and we didn't want to push it too much but it worked very well," says Ed Fogelberg of the School Committee and the COA. "Something like this usually appeals to girls but we had four senior boys and we were pleasantly surprised that it worked so well."

"The elderly themselves have been more than pleased because it gives them the feeling that somebody is interested in them and it wiles away a few hours," he continues. "But more than that, it brings the realization to young people that one day they're going to be old and they should take the problems of the elderly into account somewhere along the line."

Students at the Shawshen School in Wilmington would be the first to tell you that these days, every penny counts. Mrs. Latham's fourth graders there have already filled a gallon jug with coins and are well on their way to filling a second gallon.

The money will be used to pay for fill for the new Kidsplace playground scheduled to be built in June.

Plant hardy vegetables now

Most people think of gardening as a summer project, but what they fail to realize is that there are many flower and vegetable plants which can be set out in late April and during the month of May. These plants are classified as hardy vegetables which grow in cooler temperatures and are frost tolerant.

Flowers which can be planted in May are pansies, phlox, forget-me-nots and Sweet Williams, just to name a few. These will bloom during May and June.

Vegetables which can be set out during April are classified as "hardy." Some of these are: spinach, onions, lettuce, broccoli, beets, and cabbage. These can be set out as soon as the garden can be properly prepared in the spring. Less hardy vegetables such as beans, corn, summer squash, and cucumbers can be set out only when all danger of frost has passed.

Some early crops have a relatively short growing season and may be harvested in late June and July. Additional plantings are advised to use up this empty space in the garden and to lengthen the production season for vegetable crops.

DESKTOP PUBLISHING IN TEWKSBURY

Communications Concepts opened recently at 5 Starbird Avenue in Tewksbury and is now providing the area with a full range of desktop publishing services.

Featuring design, layout, typesetting and laser printing, the company offers an inexpensive alternative to traditional methods. In addition, Communications Concepts also offers writing and editing services, making them the "one-stop shop" for producing letterhead, business forms, brochures, newsletters and other printed material.

According to company President Marjorie Morgan, these services distinguish Communications Concepts, not only from traditional typesetters and printers, but even from other desktop publishing companies. "We also offer advertising, public relations and marketing communications for those who need a complete package. This enables us to take a job all the way from concept through production."

She further explained that no job is too large or too small for Communications Concepts. "We can handle any project, whether someone wants a 50-page report written and produced, a 10-page newsletter designed and printed or simply a 1-page flyer typeset."

Communications Concepts also offers free pick up and delivery service. For more information or an estimate call 851-5096.

LION IN MARCH

The North Shore's hottest ad agency, CPC Advertising of Peabody, closed out the month of March with the acquisition of two significant pieces of new business — First Eastern Mortgage Corporation of Lowell and Minute Man Motors of Bedford. Combined, the two accounts represent over a half million dollars in agency billing.

First Eastern Mortgage Corp., which is based in Lowell and is the largest, privately owned mortgage lender in Massachusetts, has grown to eight offices since being incorporated in 1983.

CPC Advertising will be responsible for First Eastern's entire advertising and public relations program.

Minuteman Oldsmobile/Volkswagen of Bedford, which boasts of being the nation's oldest Volkswagen dealer at the same facility, has also assigned its entire advertising account to CPC. The agency will provide marketing support in the areas of print, broadcast (radio and tv), collateral and special promotional tie-ins.

"MATCHMAKER" TRADE MISSIONS

The Small Business Administration (SBA) and the Department of Commerce are co-sponsoring nine "Matchmaker" trade missions for new-to-market or new-to-export firms. Twenty-five U.S. companies will participate in each high-visibility trade delegation designed to introduce companies to new marketing opportunities abroad. Business people will meet individually with agents and distributors. The program will also promote export expansion through the host country's distribution network.

As a co-sponsor, SBA will provide $300 to help defray the costs of up to 10 firms in each Matchmaker delegation. Assistance will be available on a first come, first serve basis to those who meet the eligibility requirements.

The Small Business Administration has made the promotion

Council for Children to hold PTO forum April 25

The Eastern Middlesex Council for Children is a volunteer agency whose purpose is to advocate for children in the five-town area of Stoneham, Melrose, Wakefield, Reading and North Reading.

It is the goal of the Education Committee of the Council to influence the quality of education programs in the area.

To accomplish that aim, we will be presenting a forum to share successful ideas and programs of Parent Teacher Organizations. The forum will take place in the Stoneham Public Library on Monday, April 25, from 7 to 9 p.m. Agenda items will include: Effective Decision Making; Increased Parental Involvement; Fundraising Activities; and School Improvement Councils.

Representatives from PTO's in all five communities are being invited. We urge you or representatives from your organization to participate and exchange your ideas, feelings and frustrations. Looking forward to seeing you on April 25. Please call Marie Cassidy, Community Representative, at 245-5267 for further information about this forum or the Council for Children.

of exporting among the nation's 18 million small businesses a top priority. John J. McNally, Jr., Massachusetts SBA District Director, points out that, "For every one billion dollars in exports, 25,000 jobs are created or maintained. International marketing creates jobs and can bring prosperity to thousands of small business owners."

Each Matchmaker will focus on particular industries. Businesses are being sought in the following categories: agribusiness, high technology electronics, health care, factory automation, business services and process industries.

If you wish to receive more information concerning SBA's program, contact Kenneth Wong of the Massachusetts District Office at (617) 565-5586.

Plain Clothes Stand and Deliver

Short Takes

Plain Clothes Starring Arliss Howard, Suzy Amis, George Wendt. Directed by Martha Coolidge. Produced by Richard Wechsler and Michael Manheim. Screenplay by A. Scott Frank. Rated PG (profanity, mild violence).

It sounds trite. Actually, it sounds very trite. An undercover cop dresses up like a teenager and infiltrates a high school where a teacher was stabbed to death. But this seemingly innocuous storyline comes to life under Martha Coolidge's direction.

Arliss Howard plays Nick Dunbar, the baby-faced cop whose younger brother is arrested for killing a teacher no one really liked anyway. Arliss, who has been suspended for punching a superior (cop that is, not being) puts on his idea of teenage glad rags and goes to his brother's school. Only instead of again stepping into the "best years of his life," he enters a comically nightmarish world filled with blackmailers, murderers and bullies.

Once established as a very distant cousin of Bruce Springsteen and a generally cool guy, Dunbar begins to integrate himself in the machinations of Adlai Stevenson High School. Unfortunately, the gym teacher's daughter wants to integrate herself with him, as does a perky red-headed teacher. The principal wants to paddle him, the shop teacher counsels him, the hall monitors want to pummel him. Is there a pattern here?

Yes, and it all relates back to Coolidge's direction. Her idea of high school is pretty demonic, but it's a horror that is nicely balanced with wacky humor. Little things that sort of float into your consciousness, like odd announcements over the intercom or snatches of background conversation, or the shop teacher who has "a thousand and one" uses for a bowling pin.

While the overall tone and breeziness of the movie make it enjoyable, the plot is a definite problem. First of all, Howard may be baby-faced, but he sounds like a man, whereas most of the students around him still sound a little squeaky. And by the time the murderer is uncovered, things have become so confusing you don't really care. But you really don't need to care to enjoy it. This is a delightful little movie in which the jokes and the characters take precedence over the plot. The humor in "Plain Clothes" remains intelligent, sometimes sophisticated, and always bubbly.

Stand and Deliver Starring Edward James Olmos, Lou Diamond Phillips. Directed by Ramon Menendez. Produced by Tom Musca. Written by Menendez and Musca. Rated PG (profanity).

Watching this movie is like spending two hours with a favorite teacher. You know, the one who really got your juices flowing and had you doing work you never thought you could.

Edward James Olmos plays the real-life James Escalante, a man who quit a lucrative job to teach computer science to a bunch of backward kids in a barrio school. Only when he arrives at Garfield High in East Los Angeles, he discovers that the school doesn't have any computers. Not only that, but the school is in danger of losing its accreditation. He sticks around anyway, and teaches algebra.

He taunts and cajoles the kids into paying attention to him, and then the subject matter. He tells these "burros" that math is in their blood and that intelligent people make better lovers. By getting the upper hand and then making math fun, Escalante does something none of the other teachers have been able to, he sparks some interest in kids who have no expectations and no ambitions.

Surprisingly, it is the teachers who fight him when he decides to teach calculus to his best students so they can take the National Advanced Placement Calculus test for college credit. Well, Escalante wants to prove everyone wrong, the teachers, the parents who don't believe in their kids, and the kids who don't believe in themselves.

It sounds sappy, but it isn't. Director Ramon Menendez filmed the picture in a straightforward, no nonsense manner that is devoid of the sentimentality that would have bogged it down. Olmos is fabulous as the stubborn, driven workaholic, and the kids, including Lou Diamond Phillips are both funny and touching as they make an effort to get themselves out of a seemingly endless pattern of drugs, unwanted pregnancy and gangs. And who ever said math wasn't fun?

Short Takes

The Seventh Sign is an apocalyptic thriller that has more going for it than the dreary ad campaign would allow. Demi Moore stars as a woman who realizes that her unborn child is the last link in a series of Biblical prophecies that predict the end of the world. The major problem here is that the slow pace interferes with the potential creepiness of it all, but it does come across on several levels that most movies of this ilk would never even attempt. Rated R. **

Milagro Beanfield War tries very hard as an allegorical tale of personal growth by letting the little guy win one against the mighty, evil land developer. It's just that it is so whimsical and sugary sweet you can barely get it down. Director Robert Redford coaxed great performances out of his cast and it's beautifully shot, but it's not fantastical enough to be a fairy tale and not realistic enough to be taken seriously. Rated R. *** 1/2

Bright Lights, Big City is a depressing journey through the Big Bad Apple with Michael J. Fox, who plays a frustrated writer mourning the death of his mother and the departure of his wife by stuffing cocaine up his nose and vodka down his gullet. Fox tries his hardest, but doesn't seem right for the role. We are supposed to feel his all-consuming suffering, but the part, not necessarily Fox, leaves us feeling empty. However, the film takes a hard, sardonic look at the 80s club scene and casual drug use and comes up with some fascinating, sometimes witty, observations about the after-hours lifestyles of the young and shallow. Rated R. ***

Beetlejuice is a wild, almost inexplicable joy ride through the phantasmagorical, tilted creations of director Tim Burton (Pee Wee's Big Adventure). The plot is about a young, sweet, newly deceased couple trying to make a go at haunting their old house, only they're having haunting problems of their own, thanks to a renegade, pervert of a ghost, played with eerie elan by Michael Keaton. Rated PG. *** 1/2

Biloxi Blues is the best movie Neil Simon has given us in years, as it is nostalgic without being sappy and funny without shying away from emotion. Based on the second play in an autobiographical trilogy, this movie has none of the staginess of Brighton Beach Memoirs and a lot more warmth. Matthew Broderick plays a young man recalling a time in the Army he thought he hated, but now remembers the sweet along with the bitter. Rated PG-13. *** 1/2

Film Note — Boston University's College of Communications is celebrating its fortieth year with a week-long schedule of exhibitions and discussions, culminating in the presentation of a Lifetime Achievement Award to director Martin Ritt. There will be a Martin Ritt retrospective, including "Hud," "The Front" and "Norma Rae" at USA Copley Place from April 23-30. The Boston University Film Festival at the Nickelodeon Theatre that same week will feature such diverse films as "Kudzu," "The First Killing Frost," "Elani" and "Mr. Mom." ## Student loan group helps pay for college

The Education Resources Institute (TERI), a Boston-based private, non-profit organization, announced that it can help students, parents, and professionals whose annual income exceeds the requirements of many financial assistance programs to obtain loans to finance their education at more than 1,500 colleges and universities throughout the United States.

"The TERI Supplemental Loan Program offers something for everyone, including higher- and upper-middle income families who don't qualify for financial aid because of their income," noted TERI President Ernest T. (Ted) Freeman.

"TERI loan approval is on the creditworthiness of the borrower or co-borrower, and the application process is streamlined so that applicants are usually notified of loan approval within a month."

TERI loan programs include the TERI Supplemental Loan; the Professional Educational Plan, or PEP, for medical-graduate, and professional-school students; and Alliance, SHARE, EXCEL, Success, and Universal, all variations of the TERI loan offered by specific institutions. There are no application deadlines or fees.

A borrower may obtain between $2,000 and $20,000 a year at a variable interest rate not to exceed the lender's prime rate plus 2 percent; defer payment on principal and make interest payments while the student is in school; and take up to 20 years to repay, unlike the standard 10-year repayment period.

Many colleges and universities are planning tuition increases from 5.5 percent to 10 percent for 1988-89. Recently, a few of the nation's most expensive colleges announced their tuition rates for next year. Among them were Brown University, at $13,375 and the University of Chicago, at $12,930, both of which offer TERI loans.

"No one can make college less expensive, but a TERI loan can make it more affordable," added Freeman. "And a college education not only increases a graduate's earning potential, it helps make that individual a productive responsible citizen."

Loan applications are available from TERI by phoning (617) 426-0681 or 1-800-255-TERI, or from the financial aid office at the student's school.

Hearing Dogs branch opens

Hearing Dogs International of Orange, announces the opening of its Regional Branch in Wilmington, under the directorship of Terri Werner.

Werner, a certified Hearing Dog Instructor/Trainer, comes to New England from Washington State, where she has been working in animal training fields for 23 years. Before coming to New England, Werner was one of the co-founders and the Hearing Dog Director of Dogs For Independence, a school designed to train dogs for the blind, dogs for the hearing impaired, physical support dogs, and companion dogs.

In addition to the Hearing Dog programs, Werner offers training services to the general

Hearing dogs alert deaf and hearing impaired individuals to sounds they need to know in order to function independently (such as fire alarm, door bell, baby crying, etc.). Hearing Dogs International has placed over eight dogs in our area over the last five years. In addition, during this same period of time, 20 dogs have been saved by Animal Aid Inc. of Medford (a humane society) and used in pet facilitated therapy.

As a non-profit agency, Hearing Dogs International must rely on financial support from the community to continue their efforts. Werner says, "I'm looking forward to working within our community to raise funds and with the help of these funds, match applicants with Hearing Dogs."

If you know of a deaf or hearing impaired individual who is interested in applying for a Hearing Dog or wish to make a tax deductible contribution, contact Terri Werner, Regional Director, Hearing Dogs International, 530 Salem St., Wilmington, Mass. 01887, phone (617) 658-6488.

Theresa (Fallavollita) Steele: Stoneham and her sister towns provided a comfortable place for me to spend my childhood. Now it's my pleasure to be able to provide a service to you. Call me to assist you with any of your relocation needs.

Remember the Dagwood sandwich?

You start with the bread you like, then add the veggies, the meat and cheese you like and finally, you add the topping you like. Now apply the same principle to planning your new home. We have building lots available in the best southern New Hampshire towns - all sizes and price ranges. Add to that several talented builders willing to work with you on a custom or special home the style of your choice. Top it all off with some truly creative financing arrangements tailored to your individual needs and trust me, you'll like it! When you call we'll share all the details with you.

JOB MART TO S-20

Dressing a girl size 7-14 is serious business. Yet, it has never been easier. That girl is too old for what she calls "little kid's clothes," but she's too young for junior sizes. Influenced by junior sizes and European styling, however, is a whole new line of OshKosh B'Gosh® spring and summer fashions for girls sizes 7-14.

Fashion takes new direction in this line with emphasis on simple silhouettes for a comfortable, relaxed look. Dresses will be popular, and shorts are definitely "in" for this all-girl look, as well as fuller, drop-waist and circle skirts. Tops are cropped and T-shirts oversized. Four brand new color-story collections tell it all with mix-and-match ease and versatility.

Inspired by workwear is the nautical stuff collection in stonewashed dark indigo blue denim or bleached white denim pants, bibs, jumpers, long shorts and jackets. Red contrast detailing adds snap to striped and nautical-theme screenprint tops.

These active girls can't live without denim, so there's no doubt that they fall in love with the clean, classic authentic denim collection. A preppy feeling re-emerges here with new style denim or coated denim jeans, jean skirts and jackets, and long shorts. Colors focus on natural, khaki and indigo blue.

Girls will be girls, and the pink color story will continue to be popular. OshKosh uses pink with light blue and white, and accents of mint and yellow in its art deco/50s feeling Ocean Drive collection. Elastic pocket dresses, circle skirts and long shorts in lightweight denim all tie together with multi-pastel tank tops, cropped shirts and dobby chambray sleeveless tops.

Romance is a definite part of the style trend, and reminiscent of a '50s picnic is the sweet inspirations collection with mix-and-match groups of gingham, swiss dot, stripes and little prints of hearts and flowers in very pastel colors of peach, mint and lavender, all combined with white.

These new OshKosh B'Gosh spring and summer fashion looks for girls sizes 7-14 can be found at finer department and children's specialty stores.

Dr. Spock speaker

NEMH dedicates Maternity Center

STONEHAM — Dr. Benjamin Spock, no less militant about childhood stress in the 1980s than he was in the 1960s, both charmed and challenged his audience on Sunday (April 10) as the keynote speaker during dedication ceremonies for the new G. Robert Rigsby, M.D. Maternity Center at New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH) in Stoneham.

The 85-year-old Dr. Spock, possibly the most famous pediatrician in the world, was one of five nationally known speakers and health-care experts who attracted some 2,000 people to the Rigsby Maternity Center's opening-day program, which included guided tours of the new facility and presentation of The First Annual G. Robert Rigsby, M.D. Lecture Series, a program of public workshops on subjects as diverse as human reproduction and infertility, advancements in obstetrical care, and the psychological health of children and families.

Among the other celebrities taking part in the day's activities were: Dr. Joyce Brothers, widely known columnist and family psychologist; Dr. Ricardo H. Asch, professor of obstetrics at the University of California at Irvine, one of the world's leading experts in female infertility; Dr. Jerome Kagan, an outstanding child psychologist and Harvard University professor; Dr. Tom Cottle, well-known authority in adolescent and family psychology; and three outstanding members of the NEMH medical staff in obstetrics/gynecology, Drs. Lin R. Goudey, Leo L.K. Sorger, and Mitchell Zager.

Eileen Prose, host of the very popular, Emmy award-winning "Good Day!" program on WCVB-TV (Channel 5, Boston), who earlier this year — over the age of 40 — had her first baby, served both as a workshop leader and as mistress of ceremonies for the dedication and ribbon-cutting exercises that officially opened the Rigsby Maternity Center.

The gathering of celebrity speakers for what is now formally known as the Annual G. Robert Rigsby, M.D. Lecture Series, is virtually without precedent among community hospitals in New England, believes James H. Bruer, senior vice president for the hospital.

"This event was successful, far beyond our expectations," said Bruer. "Public attendance was right at or slightly exceeded 2,000 people. They were given tours of the new Rigsby Maternity Center and were enthusiastic participants in the workshop sessions."

"Indeed, it was a rare opportunity for the people served by a family-centered hospital to meet, face-to-face, some of the most important experts in family life, childhood behavior, and health and maternity care."

The special, invited guests attending the morning dedication ceremony and area residents taking part in the afternoon open house and workshop series all were welcomed to NEMH by a small army of volunteers — including employees, auxiliaries, Civic Advisory Board members and others from the NEMH community — who helped make everyone feel at home by serving as hosts for the special occasion.

But it was Dr. Spock who drew enormous public interest. Speaking on the manifest problems of family stress, he encouraged greater interaction of the entire family unit, particularly grandparents, for the sake of the children and their well-being.

He suggested that there is a growing loss of community, both inside the family and outside, caused in part by the fact that financial necessity requires more than 50 percent of all mothers of preschool children to work.

"This wouldn't be so bad," Dr. Spock said, "if we had high-quality day care. But what we have is grossly inefficient, so we are short-changing our children by the hundreds of thousands. And, on top of this, there is no universal health care for families in the U.S., and for this, as the richest country in the world, we should be ashamed of ourselves."

Divorce, he added, along with the difficulties of step-parenting, violence in our society, particularly on television, teen suicide — caused, he thinks, by the fact that these children have nothing in which to believe and suffer from a loss of spiritual values — and the broad, general fear of nuclear annihilation all contribute to an extraordinarily high level of stress among children.

Dr. Spock feels that minority children should be made to feel that they are part of America and not alienated from the rest of society.

He lamented that "assembly line" jobs are contributing to a generalized dissatisfaction in people, reaffirming a troubling emphasis on materialism and dangerous feelings of failure. He linked this to the fact that the U.S. is among the most competitive of countries in the world.

But, Dr. Spock noted, "people at the very top suffer more ulcers than anybody, and people at the very bottom suffer clinical depression because they are made to feel they've let their family down or they've let their country down because you are meant to be well-to-do."

"The idea that if you work hard enough you can become rich or you can become president is absolute baloney," he said. "So people can't excuse themselves for not having succeeded."

The answer, he suggested, is found not in teaching competitiveness and materialism to our children, but in "teaching the ideas of serving our fellow beings, of cooperation, kindness and love."

The workshop program of The First Annual G. Robert Rigsby, M.D. Lecture Series — entitled "Birthing, Babies, Families, and Fathers" — was designed to cover many of the major topics of interest to families.

But the focus of the day's activities was, of course, the Rigsby Maternity Center, a state-of-the-art childbirthing facility that is one of the largest in New England.

The center features seven LDR (labor-delivery-recovery) rooms, four nurseries, two operating rooms, antenatal testing laboratory, computerized fetal monitoring systems, and 16 postpartum care rooms, most of which have a spectacular fifth-floor view of Spot Pond, just west of the hospital grounds, and the panorama of the Merrimack Valley and New Hampshire to the north.

The new center is more than twice the size of the old maternity unit at NEMH and, according to Dr. Glen A. Dixon Jr., chief of the hospital's obstetrics/gynecology department, "is designed to make a mother's stay one of the safest, most comfortable and most memorable of her life."

It is named in honor of the late G. Robert Rigsby, M.D., who was associated with NEMH for 17 years, of which 14 were spent as chief of obstetrics and gynecology. As the highlight of the dedication ceremony, a special plaque, commemorating Dr. Rigsby's service to NEMH, was unveiled by his wife, Joyce, with assistance from 17-year-old Bettessue Louise Held of San Diego, California, who was one of the first babies Dr. Rigsby delivered at NEMH.

Also participating in the formal dedication ceremonies were: James H. Bruer, NEMH senior vice president; Wolfgang von Maack, former president of the hospital; Dr. Glen A. Dixon Jr., NEMH chief of obstetrics/gynecology; Rev. John M. Hannon, pastor of St. Patrick's Parish, Stoneham; State Representative Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr.; Pastor James Ripley of New England Memorial Church, Stoneham;

George D. Lamantea, representing the Stoneham Board of Selectmen; and Rev. Kathryn McLain Titus, co-minister at the Congregational Church of West Medford.

Many members of the NEMH community, as well as other members of Dr. Rigsby's family, including his children and grandchildren, also were on hand to share in the joy of seeing his dream of a new NEMH maternity-care facility — outstanding in terms of staff, facilities, technology and equipment — become a reality at last.
